IMPORTANT NOTICE

(Concerning Differentiation of Courses in State Normal Schools for Women.)

The Virginia Normal School Board invites careful attention to the following resolutions, which were adopted by the Board April 12, 1919, and which are of very great importance to the future development of the Normal Schools.

Resolved, That the most fundamental work of the State Normal Schools and their most important function is to train teachers for the elementary schools. Ample provision must be made for this training and proper facilities therefor must be provided before any of the appropriation from the State or revenues from the schools can be used for any other purposes.

Be it further resolved, That the increased demand in the State for teachers of high school subjects, for teachers in special departments and for rural supervisors should be met by the State Normal Schools as far as possible without interfering with their primary function.

Resolved, That in order to avoid unnecessary duplication of effort and to contribute to the most economic use of public funds, the work of training high school and special teachers and rural supervisors is hereby arranged in accordance with a plan of differentiation of work which will make it unnecessary for each one of the State Normal Schools to carry the heavy burden of a large number of special courses paralleling similar courses in other schools.

The work common to all of the schools will be as follows:

1. Two-year courses for the training of elementary teachers.
2. Modification of the two-year course to meet the needs of students who may desire to pursue any one of the special four-year courses assigned to the several normal schools as outlined below. These modified two-year courses are the same as the courses of similar length now being offered at the normal schools, it not being the intention of the Normal School Board to interfere with the present catalogued two-year course. Such modified two-year courses at whatever normal school taken will be credited as the first two years of the special four-year course assigned to any one of the normals. In this way students will have preserved their appropriate credits.

In accordance with this plan every school is assigned a specific subject, but every other school is given the liberty of offering the present two-year course in that subject. This arrangement is preserved in order that young women may go from one normal for advanced work in a special subject or subjects to another normal without suffering inconvenience or loss of credits. The only exception to this arrangement is found in the case of the commercial course which will be offered in its entirety at Fredericksburg.

The differentiated work of advanced grade leading to degrees is assigned to the particular schools as follows:

To Farmville a four-year course for the training of high school teachers.

To Harrisonburg a four-year course for the training of teachers in home economics.

To Fredericksburg a four-year course for the training of teachers in music, industrial arts and commercial subjects.

To Radford a four-year course for the training of supervisors of elementary schools and for specialists in rural education. To Radford is also assigned the task of extension work in rural education. This is a wide field of endeavor and all of the normal schools are expected to co-operate in the future as in the past, but under this plan the Radford Normal is given the duty to study the needs of and give general direction to rural extension work.

In view of the fact that all of the normals have heretofore been allowed to offer four-year courses for the training of high school teachers, it would be an apparent hardship on students who have entered these courses not to allow some period in which readjustment can be made. The operation of this resolution will, therefore, become effective July 1, 1921. In the meantime no normal school will accept new students for the third and fourth years in any special department other than that assigned to it by this resolution.

GENERAL INFORMATION

HISTORY OF THE SCHOOL

It was not until about fifty years ago that the public mind in Virginia came to connect the stableness of free institutions with the intelligence of the people, and to see that general education is the basis of general thrift. The first Legislature to assemble after the adoption of the post-bellum Constitution established, July 11, 1870, a system of public schools. For twelve years or more the conduct of these schools was entrusted to such teaching force as was found ready at hand. In this experimental period nothing was more fully demonstrated than that, if the returns were to be in any wise commensurate with the cost and the high mission of the system, some provision must be made for a reliable source of supply of teachers fitted by education and training for their work. To meet this demand the Legislature, in March, 1884, passed an act establishing the State Female Normal School. In October of the same year work was begun, buildings already in use for school purposes having been procured in the town of Farmville.

One hundred ten students were enrolled the first session. From the outset the school has steadily grown, making necessary, from time to time, the enlargement of its accommodations. In January, 1914, the Legislature changed the name of the school to State Normal School for Women at Farmville.

In January, 1916, the Legislature granted to the Virginia Normal School Board the privilege of conferring degrees in education. At the next meeting of the Board this school was authorized to offer a four year course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education.

During the thirty-five years of its existence the school has sent out 2,037 graduates, nearly all of whom are, or have been teachers of the public schools in the State. There have been 6,468 matriculates. Of these, a large number (besides those who have graduated) have carried to the different sections of the State some knowledge of the methods and aims of the school. There is hardly a county or city in the State where one of its graduates may not be found, and no section where its influence has not been felt.

PURPOSE

The State Normal School for Women exists as a technical institution for the training of teachers to carry on the work of popular education in the State of Virginia. The central idea in the school is to inspire young women to enter the profession of teaching with clear and accurate ideas of the various educational problems that confront the public school teacher.

It is no longer deemed adequate that a teacher be proficient in subject matter only; professional training must be added. Hence, even in the academic work of the school, the professional idea is emphasized. Incidental instruction in methods is everywhere given in connection with the presentation of subject matter. Courses in psychology are given to throw light on the laws of mental development, that these may not be violated in the training of youth. Courses in the history of education give the teacher the evolution of the educational ideals of the present day, and bring her face to face with the educators and teachers of all ages, together with their methods and systems. Courses in school management are designed to help the teacher in organizing and conducting a school upon sound pedagogical principles. Actual teaching in our Training School under the guidance and criticism of special supervisors gives to the State a body of teachers specially trained for their profession. Every department in the institution lends its assistance to the department of education in inspiring the young teachers with the loftiest ideals of what the true teacher should be, and what sort of service should be given the State.

Thus, it becomes apparent that the purpose of the institution is to give to the teachers of the State of Virginia the highest professional skill possible in the training of her future citizens.

LOCATION

Farmville is a healthful and pleasant town of about three thousand inhabitants. It is one of the chief tobacco markets of Virginia, having a large export trade. Hampden-Sidney College is near by, and the social life of the town has the advantages that have come of over a hundred years of wholesome college influence. It has good schools and five churches—Baptist, Episcopal, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Lutheran. Its location on the Norfolk and Western, about midway between Lynchburg and Petersburg, puts it in communication with all parts of the State.

BUILDINGS

The main building is a three-story brick structure, containing an auditorium, a reception hall, parlors, students' sitting-room, a library, reading-room, thirty class-rooms, chemical, biological, and geographical laboratories, manual training workshop, gymnasium, six offices, and home accommodations for five hundred students.

There is steam heat and electric light throughout the building. The dormitories are attractively furnished and are provided with white iron beds.

Near the main building, yet entirely apart from it, is a well-equipped infirmary, in charge of a woman physician and trained nurse, both of whom live in the building and give their entire time to the health of the students.

The new Training School is a modern school building, planned and constructed so as to meet the needs of a thoroughly up-to-date school and at the same time facilitate the training of teachers.

A WORD TO DIVISION SUPERINTENDENTS

The Normal School is supported by the State in order that, through the agency of trained teachers, the large annual appropriation for public schools may be made productive of the best results in promoting the intelligence and prosperity of the people.

All parts of the State must contribute alike to the support of the school; they should all share alike in its benefits. The extent to which this is realized depends largely upon Division Superintendents of Education. The coöperation of every Superintendent is earnestly desired in securing for every county its just representation. In no way can you render better service to the young women of your Division, or more reasonably hope to equip your schools with the kind of teachers essential to their highest efficiency, than by urging them to attend one of the Normal Schools of the State, taking care at the same time to recommend only such applicants as come up fully to the requirements.

Do not hesitate to call upon the President of the school for any service he can render. If you want a teacher, write to him; he may be able to supply your wants exactly. (See page 26.)

DISCIPLINE

In the conduct of a school for young women about to assume the responsibility of a serious and dignified profession like teaching, there is little occasion for arbitrary, iron-clad discipline. Beyond the expectation that the life of our students shall conform to the requirements of promptness and fidelity to duty, and exhibit that gentle demeanor and considerate regard for others which characterize refined womanhood, we have few fixed rules. This does not mean, however, that the girls are absolutely without restrictions, with the opportunity to turn freedom into license. It is the sole duty of the head of the home and her assistants to keep in close contact with the daily life and conduct of pupils, to know where they are and what they are doing, and to provide suitable chaperonage whenever necessary. When there appears occasion for admonition and reproof, they are faithfully given. If the pupil is found to be falling off in her studies, neglecting duty, or exerting an unwholesome influence, prompt steps are taken for her amendment. A young woman who does not show some disposition to conform to high standards can hardly be considered good material for a teacher; so, if one is found unresponsive to patient endeavors to bring her to the line of duty, her connection with the school is quietly severed by virtue of the following order of the trustees: "If, in the judgment of the President, it shall at any time appear that a student is not making proper use of the advantages which the State offers in the State Normal School for Women, or that her influence is in any way prejudicial to the interests of the institution, or of her fellow students, it shall be his duty to declare her place vacant."

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

The purpose of the association is to preserve the student honor and to further the interest of the school as far as lies within its power.

It has jurisdiction over the girls during study period and in the dining-room, and in all cases in which the good name of the student body as a whole would be involved.

Decisions rendered by the Student Government Committee are reviewable by the President.

RELIGIOUS LIFE OF THE SCHOOL

While a State institution, and hence not under denominational influence, the importance of a life higher than the intellectual is fully realized, and the religious interests of the students are a matter of constant and prayerful concern. School is opened every morning with the reading of the Scriptures, a hymn, and prayer. The ministers of the several denominations of the town take part in conducting these services.

The members of the faculty, at the beginning of each term, obtain lists of students of their respective denominations, and see that each one is invited to the church and Sunday school which she is in the habit of attending at home. There are several teachers belonging to each of the religious denominations represented in Farmville, and our students are cordially welcomed at whatever church they may attend, and are urged to join Sunday-school classes. Attendance on church services is not compulsory, but its regular observance is urged upon the students as a sacred duty.

The school endeavors to maintain high moral and Christian standards, and to create an atmosphere of earnestness; for it is esteemed to be not the least important mission of the institution to send out young women equipped with a steady purpose to perform well and faithfully the duties that lie before them—a holy purpose to make the most of themselves, that they may do most for others.

THE YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

The Young Women's Christian Association aims to unite all the students in school in common loyalty to Jesus Christ, building them up in the knowledge of Christ through Bible study and Christian service. It urges upon its members the value of church membership, church loyalty, and responsibility for some form of church work. Its interdenominational character widens its interest, broadens its sympathies, and deepens its spirituality.

The Association is affiliated with the National Board of Young Women's Christian Associations of the United States, and thus with the national organizations of eighteen other nations, whose entire membership includes 500,000 Christian women.

The activities of the Association are entirely in charge of the student members. They hold weekly devotional meetings in the auditorium every Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock, besides conducting evening prayers after supper every night. The Bible Study Committee urges every student to do some form of daily Bible study and invites her to join a class in the Sunday school of her own denomination, taught by faculty members. Mission reading circles, led by members of the faculty, afford students an opportunity of becoming acquainted with world conditions, and foster a spirit of world interest and fellowship. The Social Service Committee seeks to be of service outside the Association itself in many practical ways.

Our Association contributes to the support of Miss Ethel Topping, an Association Secretary in Kobe.

As many girls as possible are asked to go as delegates to the Summer Conference at Blue Ridge, North Carolina, which is one of the most notable opportunities offered by the school

A well-furnished sitting and reading room belonging to the Association affords a place for social affairs, or, better still, a place where one can be quiet, away from the hurry of school.

The members of the Association show every courtesy to the new student as she adjusts herself to the new and bewildering routine of school life. Hand-books, issued by the Association and giving a concise account of student life in the school, are sent to girls about to enter for the first time. If any girl happens to be overlooked, the General Secretary, whose headquarters are in room 162, will be very glad to give them to the newcomers at any time. She would deem it a great favor if every new girl would find her out and make herself known to her some time during the first week of the term.

Every young woman attending the school is cordially invited to become a member of the Young Women's Christian Association and to help it to realize its purpose through her interest and hearty support.

VIRGINIA NORMAL LEAGUE

The Virginia Normal League was organized in the spring of 1898 by Dr. Robert Frazer, then president of the school.

The objects of the League are twofold: First, to found and maintain a loan fund for those students who would otherwise be unable to attend school; second, to conduct a free educational bureau for students.

THE LOAN FUND is maintained by the annual dues of one dollar a member and by voluntary contributions from outside sources. Its aim is to help, by loans without interest, worthy young women who wish to prepare for effective service as teachers. Five of these have received such loans during the past year, making a total of ninety-four since its organization. It offers a good opportunity to all who are willing to extend a helping hand to coming generations as well as this. There is no better place to invest money, with this in view, than in the brain of an earnest, honest young woman. The committee will gratefully receive, and faithfully use, any contribution, large or small, that may be sent. The League has now nearly six thousand dollars, all of which is in use. As soon as any amount is returned it is loaned out again at once, for the demand is greater than the Fund can supply. All requests for loans should be made by May 10.

THE EDUCATIONAL BUREAU seeks to serve as a free medium of communication between teachers trained and approved by the school, and persons who wish to employ teachers. It engages to recommend only such as are believed to be thoroughly qualified for the work contemplated, and in all respects trustworthy. County superintendents, school trustees, and others desiring good teachers, will do well to apply to the Bureau. Full information will be furnished without cost.

We shall be glad to hear from former students of the school. Tell us where you are, and what you are doing. Please bring the Bureau, as far as you can, to the knowledge of the public, especially those interested in employing teachers, and inform us of vacancies whenever you can. We beg you also to take the lead in organizing auxiliary chapters in your counties. Eight have already been organized—in Bristol, Roanoke, Farmville, Danville, Richmond, Lynchburg, Covington, and Salem. Information as to these will be sent on application. Address, VIRGINIA NORMAL LEAGUE, Farmville, Virginia.

CUNNINGHAM MEMORIAL LOAN FUND

The Alumnæ of the school who graduated during the administration of Dr. John A. Cunningham, from 1886 to 1896, have raised a fund, intending to establish a scholarship in memory of his faithful and loving service to them and to the State, feeling that the most fitting tribute that could be paid him would be the effort to give to those who are unable to obtain it for themselves the training for the work to which he devoted his life.

When this fund amounted to $1,000 it was decided that, instead of letting it lie idle until it reached a sufficient sum to endow the scholarship, it should be placed in the hands of the President of the school, to be loaned at five per cent. interest to worthy students who could not pay their own expenses. Thus, it is bearing fruit even before the scholarship is established, and proving of great assistance to some of our best students.

Those wishing to obtain a loan from this fund should apply to President Jarman.

STATE LOAN FUND

The State of Virginia provides that a sum equal to one per cent. of the annual appropriation of State institutions be used as a Loan Fund for the benefit of students who are unable to defray their expenses. Not more than $100.00 per session is loaned to a student. The interest required is four per cent., and all notes must be properly endorsed.

Applications for assistance from the State Loan Fund should be addressed to President Jarman.

LIBRARY AND READING ROOM

The students are supplied with collateral reading, reference work, and recreative reading from a library of 8,735 classified volumes, a reference room containing encyclopedias, dictionaries, and atlases, and a reading room supplied with ten daily and twelve weekly and semi-weekly papers of the State, besides one hundred and seven well-selected departmental and popular periodicals.

LITERARY AND DEBATING SOCIETIES

There are four literary societies, the Argus, the Cunningham, the Pierian, and the Athenian, and two debating societies, the Jefferson and the Ruffner. These are an important factor in the intellectual and social life of the school. They impart a strong impulse to literary work and debating, and bring the girls together at regular times for a common intellectual purpose. The literary societies aim primarily to promote a real interest in literature, the debating societies to afford an opportunity for practice in debating to every student above the second year class who will avail herself of the opportunity. All of the societies attempt to develop and exercise individual talent, to arouse and encourage social instincts, and to afford practice in organization and in parliamentary usage.

Meetings are held every two weeks throughout the year, and a spirit of friendly rivalry is shown in the effort to offer interesting programs. Each literary society chooses some special period of literature or some writer or group of writers to be studied during the year. This study forms the basis of the literary programs. Debates also are held at regular intervals by the literary societies. The debating societies hold spirited debates regularly. These debates develop the powers of argument, clear and logical thinking, and forceful expression. In addition to this work all the societies hold special meetings, which add variety. The programs for these meetings are in a lighter vein, and afford opportunity for the exercise and encouragement of musical and histrionic talent.

PI KAPPA OMEGA SOCIETY (HONORARY)

Organized 1918

This society was organized as the result of a need felt by faculty and students for an organization in recognition of scholarship, character and leadership. The society purposes not only to recognize and encourage such qualities, but to contribute by definite forms of service to the intellectual and social life of the Campus. The standards for admission are high and candidates are chosen by the faculty and by student members of the society. There are three kinds of members: student, associate (faculty), and honorary (alumnae).

STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

The Focus is a monthly magazine published by the students. The editorial staff is composed of the students and two alumnae, who are assisted by reporters from the different classes and school organizations. The magazine aims to promote literary activity among the students. Trophies are awarded to those who contribute the best work.

The Virginian is an annual publication which is edited and published by the Second Year Professional class.

STATE SCHOLARSHIPS

Any young lady desiring an appointment as State student should apply to the President for application blank. This blank, when filled out and signed by the Division Superintendent, should be returned to the President. If the application is favorably considered, the applicant will be notified of her appointment. Every State student is required to sign a pledge that she will teach in the public schools of Virginia for at least two years after leaving the Normal School. While thus teaching she receives pay for her services as any other teacher.

Upon the expiration of this period she is required to send to the President a statement, signed by a Division Superintendent, to the effect that she has fulfilled this pledge; or make to him a satisfactory explanation of her failure to do so. Otherwise, she will receive a bill for her tuition.

All students applying for State scholarships must be at least fifteen years of age, of good moral character, and sound health.

Young women from Virginia, not appointed as State students, and applicants from other States, are admitted as pay students; the charge for tuition being $30.00 per session.

EXPENSES

A registration fee, payable in advance, for entire session, $10.00. Public school teachers entering in April are charged no registration fee.

A medical fee, payable in advance, for entire session, $5.00. No medical fee is charged students whose homes are in Farmville.

Board, including furnished room, fuel, lights, laundry, bedding and towels, everything for the entire session, $180.00.

Board is $180.00 for the session. It is not charged by the month, but is divided into nine payments of twenty dollars each. The first payment is due the day of arrival at school. All other payments are due on the first day of each succeeding month. No reduction is made for absence during the Christmas holidays nor for absence less than thirty days.

Every student is expected to comply strictly with this regulation unless she wishes to make her payments in larger instalments than twenty dollars.

Students must come prepared to make the following payments on entrance:

Registration fee.....	$10.00
Medical fee.....	5.00
First payment on board.....	20.00
Total	$35.00

The remaining payments on board are due the first of each month, and must be paid when due.

Checks for board or tuition should not be made payable to the President, but to the student herself.

The fees for laboratory courses are stated in connection with the outlines of these courses.

Tuition for pay students, for the half session, payable in advance, $15.00.

The total expense per session for a State student, as shown above, is $195.00; for a pay student, $225.

All money due the School should be paid to Mr. B. M. Cox, Business Manager, and receipts taken therefor.

Registration fees should be paid to Mr. Cox as soon as possible after arrival at school, as no student is enrolled in her classes until she can show a receipt for this fee.

No diploma or certificate is granted to anyone until all sums due the school are paid, nor are students at liberty to occupy the rooms previously assigned to them until they have made the advance payment.

Each student must supply her own text-books. Books will be furnished at publishers' prices, with cost of handling added.

All communications of inquiry, requests for catalogues, etc., should be made to the President or Registrar.

In writing, always give your county as well as post office. The School has to do with counties and cities, not post offices. If you wish your letter to receive prompt attention, give your county, even though you live in a town.

Each student is allowed a reasonable number of articles in the laundry each week, but elaborately trimmed garments are not received.

The Dormitories accommodate five hundred students. For applicants in excess of this number board is obtained in private families at prices about equal to those given above. No student, however, is allowed to board outside of the building without the consent of the President.

ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS AND CLASSIFICATION

The course of study (see page 38) is arranged by terms, the A classes being offered in the fall and the B classes in the spring term. The work of the fall term is not repeated in the spring term, hence it is much better for students to enter in September than in February.

In classifying pupils, the aim is to make their classification as nearly regular as possible, yet the graded system is not strictly adhered to.

The following are the general regulations governing entrance and classification:

1. Graduates of approved high schools are admitted as follows:

Graduates from approved four-year high schools may enter Professional Courses I, II, III, IV, or V, and upon the completion of Course I, II, III, or V, or the first two years of Course IV, receive the Diploma. Upon the completion of all four years of Course IV, they receive the Degree of Bachelor of Science in Education.

Graduates of approved three-year high schools, or the equivalent, are required to take another year of high school work before entering upon the professional work. The work of this year is selected by the Committee on Classification to fit the case in question.

Professional Courses I, II, III, and IV lead to teaching in the kindergarten-primary, the primary grades, the grammar grades and the high school, respectively. Course V leads to the teaching of Home Economics and to demonstration work.

The fall term of the First Year of Courses, I, II, III, and IV is the same, in order that a student may have a whole term of contact with professional work before she is called upon to decide where she is best fitted to teach, and hence, which course she should elect. Course V is an exception to this rule. Students who come here knowing that they wish to specialize in Home Economics enter directly upon the first term of Course V.

In addition to the above requirement applicants for Course I (kindergarten-primary) must have sufficient knowledge of instrumental music to enable them to play simple marches with ease. They must also be capable of leading the children in the singing of simple songs. This ability in music is tested by the Supervisor of the Kindergarten.

2. Students coming from approved high schools before graduating are fitted into the High School Course. If, however, they lack only a few points of graduation from an accredited four-year high school they are allowed, if they prefer it, to complete the requirements of their own school.

3. Students coming from colleges, academies, or private schools, having done the equivalent of high school work, are admitted upon trial, subject to the same conditions as high school graduates. Those not having done the equivalent of high school work are fitted into the High School Course.

¹4. Holders of First Grade Certificates may enter the First Year of Course II or III, and upon the completion of the year's work may receive from the Department of Public Instruction the Elementary Professional Certificate.

5. All candidates for admission by certificate must file with the Classification Committee not later than September 1 their certificates of preparation made out on the blank furnished by the registrar. These blanks must come from some recognized institution or accredited school, must be made out by some member of the faculty, and must bear the signature of the head of the school from which they come. They must come direct to the Classification Committee and not through the hands of the candidate in question. The persons filling out these blanks are requested to make them as full, explicit, and definite as possible.

Certificates of preparation from private tutors and from ungraded rural schools are not accepted. Students thus prepared must in all cases take entrance examinations.

6. All classification based upon certificates and diplomas from other schools is conditional. If at any time the student shows inability to do the work of any class to which she has been thus admitted, she is assigned to a lower class at the discretion of the teacher.

7. Teachers of public schools are admitted without examination to any classes they are prepared to take, on a basis of their licenses, and without tuition fees.

8. In the professional years, because of the strictly technical nature of the work, no credit is given for courses completed at other than Registered State Normal Schools.

9. Students who reenter school after an absence of a year or more will be admitted without examination, but they will be expected to conform to the requirements of the later catalogue—not of that under which they first entered.

ACCREDITED SCHOOLS

A four-year high school to be approved must have at least sixteen units of work as specified below, and a teaching force equivalent to the entire time of three teachers.

A three-year high school to be approved must have at least twelve units of work and a teaching force equivalent to the entire time of two teachers.

A unit is a year's work in any high school subject, covering five periods a week, of at least forty minutes, during not less than thirty-six weeks, and constituting approximately a quarter of a full year's work. In other words, sixteen units will not be credited if done in less time than four years, nor twelve units if done in less than three years. For schools in which the number of periods given to any study, or the length of the period, is below the standard here specified, the credit for such study will be reduced pro rata. In the scientific subjects two hours of laboratory instruction will be counted as the equivalent of one hour of recitation.

Of the sixteen units offered by a four-year high school there must be four in English, two in Mathematics, one in history, and one in Science.

Of the twelve units offered by a three-year high school there must be three in English, two in Mathematics, one in History, and one in Science.

COURSES AND CERTIFICATES

This school offers five professional courses all leading to a diploma and one to a degree, as follows: Courses I, II, III, and V, and the first two years of IV, lead to a diploma, and all four years of Course IV to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education. Any student having the full diploma of the School, representing two years of professional work based on sixteen units of high school work, may take two additional years of work of college grade and receive the degree of B. S. in Education.

Professional Course I prepares for kindergarten-primary; Course II, for primary; Course III, for grammar grades;

Course IV, for high school; and Course V, for the teaching of Home Economics and for demonstration work.

Courses II and III have A and B groups, preparing respectively for city and for town or country schools.

Course IV is so arranged that a diploma may be given upon the completion of the first two years, and the degree of Bachelor of Science in Education upon the completion of the four years.

The entrance requirement for all these courses is the same; namely, a diploma from a four year high school or the equivalent, which must, in every case, represent not less than sixteen units of work.

The following certificates are given by the Department of Public Instruction for the completion of these courses and parts thereof, as follows:

1. Collegiate Professional Certificate: The degree of B. S. in Education entitles the holder to the Collegiate Professional Certificate given by the Department of Public Instruction. This certificate is valid for ten years and renewable for ten, and permits its holder to teach in the high schools and elementary schools.

2. Normal Professional Certificate: The diploma of the school entitles the holder to a Normal Professional Certificate given by the Department of Public Instruction. This certificate is valid for ten years and renewable for ten, and permits its holder to teach in the elementary schools.

3. Elementary Professional Certificate: The completion of the first year of Courses I, II, III, IV, or V, based upon sixteen units of high school work or the completion of the first year of Course II or III, based upon the State First Grade Certificate, entitles the holder to the Elementary Professional Certificate given by the Department of Public Instruction. This certificate is valid for six years and renewable for six, and permits its holder to teach in the elementary schools.

4. Second Grade Certificate: The completion of the Fourth Year of the High School Course, plus six weeks of professional work taken at a summer school, entitles the student to a Second Grade Certificate given by the Department of Public Instruction. This certificate is valid for two years and renewable for two, and permits its holder to teach in the elementary schools.

NOTE.—In the event of the student's continuing her summer school professional work, the completion of the second summer entitles her to a First Grade Certificate, provided she has had nine months of successful experience, or if she lacks the experience to a Provisional First Grade Certificate. The completion of the third summer entitles her to the Elementary Professional Certificate. (See above.)

Let it be understood that no student is counted worthy of a diploma or certificate, whatever may be the grade of her academic attainments, who has not been found uniformly dutiful and trustworthy.

RECORD OF STUDENTS

A record of each student's work is kept in the Registrar's office.

Reports from the various members of the Faculty are handed in, and every student who is not making a passing grade at any time is notified of the fact.

At the close of the fall and spring terms reports for the half-session are sent to parents and guardians.

The work of students is graded as follows: A, B, C, D, and E. D is the passing grade.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC

No instrumental music is taught in the School. Students desiring this work can get it at the Farmville Conservatory of Music. For catalogue giving information as to courses in both vocal and instrumental music, terms, etc., write

MRS. ELSA SCHEMMEL SCHMIDT,
Head of Conservatory of Music,
Farmville, Virginia.

ART

Students have the opportunity to receive individual instruction in Art under an experienced teacher and artist who has a studio on the school grounds. For information in regard to the courses offered, terms, etc., address

MISS MARY E. GRAINGER,
Farmville, Virginia.

COURSE OF STUDY

NOTE.—The letters A and B indicate respectively the Fall, or A Term, and the Spring, or B Term. The figures under these letters show the number of forty-five minute periods per week.

The numbers and letters in parentheses refer to the numbers of the courses as described under the various departments. A number followed by "a" as Algebra (71 a), indicates a course offered in the Fall Term only; a number followed by "b," as Arithmetic (72 b), indicates a course offered in the Spring Term only; a number followed by both "a" and "b," as Reading (25 a, b), indicates a course continuing through both terms. A number followed by no letter indicates a one-term course offered in the Fall and repeated in the Spring for different sections of the same class.

The electives in the first year are restricted (see note on preceding page), the other electives must be chosen from courses numbered above 300.

By Major is meant that department in which the student is specializing.

By Minor is meant that department in which the student is also specializing, but to a less extent than in the case of the Major.

For the two-year course the Major must include four periods per term for the last three terms, or a total of twelve periods. For the four-year course the Major must include four periods per term for six or seven terms, or a total of twenty-four or twenty-eight periods.

For the two-year course the Minor includes the same amount of work as the Major, four periods per term for each of three terms or a total of twelve periods. For the four-year course the Minor must include four periods per term for five or six terms, or a total of twenty or twenty-four periods.

DEPARTMENTS OF INSTRUCTION

DEPARTMENT OF ENGLISH

Composition, Rhetoric, Spelling, Grammar, Literature, Methods in Language, Methods in Literature.

MR. GRAINGER, MISS SUTHERLIN,* MISS NEILL,
MISS KENNEDY, MRS. BRETNALL

The work of the Department of English consists of various elements, each of which has specific aims of its own. The language work, including composition, rhetoric, spelling, and grammar, aims to furnish the information, the practice, and the drill needed to make each student "a master of good English for common uses." The study of literature seeks to broaden interests and deepen spiritual insight and to promote the finer growth of character by presenting in artistic form ideals and aspirations which are already potential in the minds of the students. The "professional work" of the Department aims further to help each student to become an effective teacher of English in its several branches. Obviously, none of these aims could be accomplished fully without developing the ability to think clearly and independently. The teaching of English seeks directly, therefore, like all teaching, to contribute its part toward training students to think for themselves.

The Department of English has the coöperation of all departments in establishing good habits in speech and writing, and much of the class work in English grows out of other studies. Social motives are utilized in the composition work, the actual communication of ideas to others for some definite purpose, rather than mere self-expression, being the practice both in the writing and in the speaking that is done. The effort is made at the beginning of each year to determine the actual ability of each student in each of the several branches of English work. Class work is then adapted to the needs of the majority, and individual effort is directed toward the correction of individual weaknesses and the cultivation of special gifts. Students who are preparing to teach English in the high school find the opportunity to specialize in this subject throughout the professional years.

Prospective students in the Department of English are advised to bring text books formerly used in classes in grammar, composition, rhetoric, and literature, and standard editions of such literary classics as are prescribed in the English course to be taken. A good handbook of composition, preferably Woolley's Handbook of Composition, and a good dictionary should be on every student's table, together with a copy of the English Bible, for reference and reading.

The High School and Professional courses offered by this department are as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN ENGLISH

ENGLISH (10 a, b) First Year (Taught in the Training School). Five periods a week throughout the year. Elementary Composition, Grammar, and Reading. In this and the following years, the composition work, oral and written, grows out of the social and intellectual needs and interests of the class and the various activities in which the students are engaged. The special task in the First Year is to make a social working unit of a group of students from various places and to train the individuals to think. Natural self expression comes in getting acquainted with each other; and the real communication of the pupils' own ideas, under the guidance of the teacher of English, furnishes practice in various kinds of speaking and writing and motivates study and drill in the technical elements. The students' work is carefully observed for errors in grammar, spelling, pronunciation, form, and idiom, and practical drills are given to correct bad habits, correctness being everywhere considered merely one of the means to effectiveness. The text book in composition furnishes convenient reference material for this work and for a review of such parts of English grammar as the class actually needs. English grammar is compared with Latin. Training is given in the use of the dictionary.

The pupils read appropriate literature, mainly narrative, which is related to their natural interests, and spend some time in the Normal School Library each week in prescribed and unprescribed reading for enjoyment. The teacher helps the pupils to understand and appreciate their reading and to increase their enjoyment of it by oral reading and discussion. They select, memorize, and recite enjoyable passages from poetry, and dramatize in a simple way some of the scenes from stories and plays studied.

TEXT BOOKS: Webster's Secondary School Dictionary; Curry's Literary Readings.

READINGS: Cooper's Deerslayer or The Last of the Mohicans; Macaulay's Lays of Ancient Rome; Shakespeare's Julius Caesar or A Midsummer Night's Dream; Bennett's Master Skylark; Homer's Odyssey (Palmer's Translation); Jewett's The Night Before Thanksgiving, A White Heron and Selected Stories; Grenfell's Adrift on an Ice Pan.

ENGLISH (11 a, b) Second Year (Taught in the Training School.) Five periods a week throughout the year. Composition and Literature. The work of the Second Year continues that of the First Year with similar motives and methods. Corresponding to the pupils' increase in mental power, advance is made toward the conscious application of the simpler principles of rhetoric in composition, and toward the study of literary forms in literature. With a view to learning how they may increase the effectiveness of their stories, descriptions, and other written compositions, the pupils make an inductive study of the elementary rhetorical principles involved. The reading of a current magazine, to which the class subscribes, the work of the literary society, and other activities furnish interesting material for simple, systematic exercises in oral and written composition, and for regular weekly themes. Individual conferences are held when necessary.

The classics for study and reading are selected for their literary and historical value as well as their adaptation to the pupils and relations to other school interests. Special attention is given to Southern writers. During the first term the literature studied is mainly narrative and descriptive prose, especially the short story; during the second term it is mainly poetry, especially the lyric, and persuasive prose.

TEXT BOOKS: Brooks's English Composition, Book I, Enlarged (For reference and topical study any standard text in high school composition already owned by the pupil may be used). Webster's Secondary School Dictionary; Mims and Payne's Southern Prose and Poetry.

READINGS: (For class study) Narrative and poetic portions of the Bible; Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice; George Eliot's Silas Marner; (for outside reading) Dickens's A Tale of Two Cities; Helen Keller's The Story of My Life.

ENGLISH (12 a, b) Third Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. Composition and English Literature. The work of this year begins with a survey of the attainments of individuals in the class during the past two years' study of English. Personal and business letters are written with a specific view to securing adaptation to the persons addressed, and practice is given in everyday kinds of correspondence, explanation, description, and narration, with a view to gaining clearness, interest, and adequacy of treatment according to the purpose for which the writing is done. Current events, the reading of standard magazines, class work in literature and other studies, student life and relations, experience outside of school, all furnish subjects for oral class reports, outlines, explanations, discussions, debates, and for broadening and organizing the students' interests.

The basis of this year's work in literature is a study of English literature accompanied by a rapid sketch of the literary history. This rapid survey is intended to give the student a general view of the whole range of English literature to be used as a basis for future reading and study. The emphasis is placed on the study of literature as a reflex of social conditions with especial attention to the growth of the democratic spirit and the development of social ideals in education.

TEXT BOOKS: Brooks's English Composition, Book II; Metcalf's English Literature; Newcomer and Andrew's Twelve Centuries of English Prose and Poetry; Webster's Secondary School Dictionary.

ENGLISH (13 a, b) Fourth Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. Advanced Composition, American and Recent Literature. Some of the problems of the last year in high school English are to sum up the present attainment of each student, to round it out and bring it into relation with present-day life, and to prepare for the more rigid work of the professional years. By means of tests applied at the beginning of the year, the students realize their standing in each of the various branches of English equipment. Much of the work of the year is directed toward bringing up individual deficiencies and developing special talent or capacity as indicated by the tests. Wide reading in the library in both current and classic literature in connection with the study of significant questions of the day in which the students show an interest, provides much material for presentation in class in the form of oral and written reports, discussions, and debates. The special problem in composition, therefore, is the effective use of books and reading in the preparation and presentation of sustained exposition and argument. The writing of stories based on the students' own experience and observation, and occasionally of verse, to be submitted for publication in the school magazine, gives variety to the work, and, with the more capable students, an opportunity to try to apply some of the principles of writing revealed by the study of American literature.

A rapid survey of the development of American literature from colonial times gives a background for the more particular study of recent writers. The class is organized into a current literature club to discuss and debate present-day problems of all sorts encountered in recent books and magazines. Each member subscribes to a standard magazine and reads widely in other periodicals in the Library.

Practice in oral reading and a review of English grammar are given during the year.

TEXT BOOKS: Brooks's English Composition, Book II; Woolley's Handbook of Composition, Metcalf's American Literature, Calhoun and McAlarney's Readings from American Literature, Webster's Secondary School Dictionary.

ENGLISH (14 a) Fourth Year. Three periods a week for term A. Nineteenth Century Poets. [Given in 1919-1920, alternating annually with English (15 a)]. This course aims to give as thorough an acquaintance as the time allows with the chief English poets of the last century.

TEXT BOOK: Page's British Poets of the Nineteenth Century.

ENGLISH (14 b) Fourth Year. Three periods a week for term B. Shakespeare. [Given in 1919-1920, alternating annually with English (15 b)]. Three important plays of Shakespeare, a comedy, a tragedy, and a history, are carefully studied as representatives of these three types. As such they are compared with specimens of such plays of recent authorship and with pre-Shakespearean forms of English drama. The development of the types from these early examples is traced rapidly, and finally Shakespeare's life and the growth of his art are studied in connection with six or eight plays, which are considered in chronological order.

TEXT BOOKS: Shakespeare's Complete Works, Everyman's Library Edition; Dowden's Shakespeare Primer.

SUPPLEMENTARY READING: Dowden's Shakespeare, His Mind and Art, and other standard Shakespearean criticism.

ENGLISH (15 a) Fourth Year. Three periods a week for term A. The American Short Story. [Given in 1918-1919, alternating annually with English (14 a)]. Short-stories of Irving, Poe, Hawthorne, Bret Harte, O. Henry, and several contemporary writers are read and studied. The aim is to develop an appreciation of the art of writing short stories.

TEXT BOOKS: Notestein and Dunn's The Modern Short-Story; a collection of short stories.

ENGLISH (15 b) Fourth Year. Three periods a week for term B. The English Novel. [To be given in 1918-1919, alternating annually with English (14 b)]. The class reads broadly from the leading English novelists and makes a study of a representative novel by Dickens, by Thackeray, and by George Eliot.

PROFESSIONAL COURSES IN ENGLISH

ENGLISH (16 a, b) First Year of Courses I, II, III, and V; term A of Course IV. Three periods a week. Composition and Grammar. The aim is to refresh the student's mind on such of the essentials of English as will be most useful in teaching, especially oral and written composition, and to improve her command of the mother tongue for ordinary uses. On entrance the students are carefully tested in order to determine the working possibilities and actual achievement of each in composition, reading, note-taking, outlining, public speaking, reciting, and spelling. The work includes regular practice in oral and written composition, a re-reading of much of the literature, especially stories; memorizing of many of the poems taught in the elementary school, a review of English grammar. Each student is urged to use this and every other course she is taking as an opportunity to improve herself in English, as an essential part of her preparation for teaching TEXT BOOKS: Woolley's Handbook of Composition, Slater's Freshman Rhetoric, Buehler's English Grammar, The Training School Course of Study, Webster's Secondary School Dictionary.

READING: Palmer's Self Cultivation in English, school classics, stories from classic and Norse mythology, folk tales, etc., listed in The Training School Course of Study.

ENGLISH (17) Second Year of Courses II and III. Two periods a week for the teaching term. Teaching of Elementary English. This course presents some of the essentials of the language work of all the grades in the elementary school. No dogmatic presentation of arbitrary cut-and-dried methods is attempted; rather the effort is made to stimulate the student-teacher's originality and ingenuity in making her own methods. Problems met by the student-teachers in their work in the Training School form the basis of much of the work, and the improvement of their own English is one of the main aims.

TEXT BOOKS: The Training School Course of Study; English in the Elementary Grades, Bulletin of the State Normal School for Women at Farmville, September, 1915; Sheridan's Speaking and Writing English.

CHILD LITERATURE AND LANGUAGE METHODS (18) First Year, Courses I and II. Four periods a week for term B. Repeated in the academic term of the Second Year of same courses for the other sections of the class. In Child Literature a study is made of literature appropriate for the grades from the Kindergarten through the Fourth Grade. The principles underlying the selection and presentation of poems and stories for children are discussed, and also their utilization for training in language through reproduction and dramatization. Methods for the development in the child of a taste for good literature, and selection of books for home and library are considered. The opportunity for individual presentation of stories is provided for. In Language Methods, some of the points taken up are the practical aims of language, its relation to thinking, chief sources of material for lessons, oral and written composition, correlation and motivation, methods of presentation, type lessons of several kinds being developed. Some opportunity is given for observation of teaching.

TEXT BOOKS: (Required) State Normal School Bulletin on English; Hearts of Oak, Books I-IV. (For reading.) McClintock's Literature in the Elementary School.

REFERENCE BOOKS: Literature in the Elementary Schools, McClintock; How to Tell Stories to Children, Bryant; Teaching of Poetry, Haliburton and Smith; The Teaching of English, Chubb.

In addition to the stories in the Hearts of Oak books, other reading is required, such as fairy tales, myths, realistic stories, etc.

ENGLISH (310 b) Required in First Year of Course IV. Five periods a week for term B. This course is a continuation of English (16 a) with the addition of a rapid survey and reading course in American literature. In order that the students may begin definite preparation for the teaching of high school English, they are required to read American literature that is suitable for high school pupils and to practice the kinds of writing usually done in the high school. The teaching of American ideals through literature is stressed. A current magazine is taken, both to inform the students on happenings of the times and to show them how to make use of magazines in English classes. Much practice is given in oral interpretation of "high school classics."

TEXT BOOKS: In addition to those named above, Metcalf's American Literature, or Long's American Literature, the texts of "high school classics" from American literature.

SUPPLEMENTARY READING: Selected by students from the list of Books for Home Reading, compiled by a Committee of the National Council of Teachers of English.

ENGLISH (311) Required in Second Year of Courses IV and V. Four periods a week during the academic term. Teaching of High School English. The class makes a study of the best modern methods of carrying on the English work in high schools. Instruction and practice is given in the kinds of writing that are useful to teachers as community leaders. The literature read and reviewed is selected mainly from that studied in the junior high school.

TEXT BOOKS: Hosie's Reorganization of English in Secondary Schools, Bulletin of the U. S. Bureau of Education; texts of masterpieces studied; Long's or Metcalf's English Literature; Bolenius's Teaching Literature in the Grammar Grades and High School.

ENGLISH (312 a, b) Elective in Second Year of Course IV. Four periods a week throughout the year. A systematic survey of English literature with the emphasis upon materials suitable for high school pupils.

TEXT BOOKS: To be selected.

SUPPLEMENTARY READINGS: Selected by students from the list of Books for Home Reading, compiled for the National Council of Teachers of English.

ENGLISH (313 a) Elective in Third Year of Course IV and required in Third Year of Course V. Four periods a week for term A. Advanced Composition. Practical training is given in the kinds of writing and speaking which teachers in grammar grades and high schools are called upon to do in connection with the work of the school and the community. The aim is to equip the students for progressive leadership. The gathering and presentation of material on teachers' problems, such as are discussed in teachers' meetings, the writing of book reviews and other items and articles for local papers or educational periodicals, effective business and personal correspondence, chapel talks, are typical of the kind of work undertaken. It grows out of the students' own experiences and tastes. Each student writes at least one extended article based on intensive investigation in some one field.

TEXT BOOKS: To be supplied.

SUPPLEMENTARY READING: Great masterpieces of classical literature in English translation.

ENGLISH (313 b) Elective in Third Year of Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. The Teaching of Literature. Methods of conducting the reading and study of literature in the upper grammar grades and high school, the planning of courses, etc., constitute the subject of this course. Several representative masterpieces of English and American literature and foreign masterpieces in translation are studied by way of exemplification of methods discussed.

TEXT BOOKS: Smith's What Can Literature Do For Me? Bolenius's Teaching Literature in the Grammar Grades and High Schools.

SUPPLEMENTARY READING: Great masterpieces of modern literature in English translation.

ENGLISH (314 a) Elective in Fourth Year of Course IV. Four periods a week for term A. The English Language. A survey of the history of the language is undertaken with a view to enabling the prospective teacher better to understand the structure of English of today, its vocabulary, grammar, and idiom, as an aid in handling the language aspects of English teaching in the high school, and in order to increase the student's command of the mother tongue. The study of derivation, comparison of English with other languages, the investigation of present day developments, are typical of the kind of work undertaken.

TEXT BOOK: Emerson's History of the English Language.

SUPPLEMENTARY READING: Selected works from the literature of the various periods studied in the development of the language.

ENGLISH (314 b) Elective in the Fourth Year of Professional Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. The Victorian Age in Literature. The primary aim of the course is to aid the student in realizing the trend of thought in the period preceding the present age; and many selections are read from typical authors of the period in preference to intensive study of only the recognized masters.

TEXT BOOKS: Stedman's Victorian Poets; Brownell's Victorian Prose Masters; Page's British Poets of the Nineteenth Century. Selections from the leading authors are read.

DEPARTMENT OF READING

*MISS WHEELER, MRS. BRETNALL

The ability to read understandingly is necessary for the mastery of any subject. It would, therefore, be difficult to overestimate the importance of training in reading for the future teacher. Modern educational thought recognizes the value of the oral method, particularly in the teaching of English. In order that this method may be used effectively, the teacher must have that rare gift, the ability to read with understanding and feeling, to interpret to the class the thought of the author.

The Department of Reading recognizes the importance of establishing the reading habit, and an effort is made to develop a taste for good literature. The material used in the classroom is chosen, not only because of its fitness for oral expression, but also because of its literary value.

Since the voice is a very important factor in the equipment of the future teacher, emphasis is laid upon the development of good tone quality as well as clear articulation and enunciation. Care is given to the discovery and correction of individual imperfections and peculiarities of voice and manner.

Opportunities are given for practice in reading the various types of literature: narrative, descriptive, lyric, dramatic, etc. The two-fold aim of oral reading—to get the thought and to give the thought—is emphasized throughout the course. Pupils are encouraged to read simply and naturally, but with real feeling.

In addition to the practice in oral reading, definite provision is made for improving the pace and eliminating waste in silent reading. A reasonable degree of facility in sight reading is required. An attempt is made to teach the pupils to "think on their feet," and in their oral reports, directness of form and manner is required. The students are encouraged to memorize passages from the poetry which they have enjoyed, and a practicable method of memorizing is worked out. Some dramatic work is included in all the courses, as this is believed to be one of the best ways to overcome self-consciousness and to develop the imagination.

This department offers no High School courses. The Professional courses are as follows:

PROFESSIONAL COURSES IN READING

READING (20 a) First Year of all Courses. Two periods a week for term A. This course aims to improve the pupil's own reading, and to give her, as a teacher of reading, definite standards of criticism.

TEXT Book: Emerson's Evolution of Expression, Vol. IV.

READING METHODS (20 b) First Year of Course III. Two periods a week for term B. This course includes the discussion of methods, application of standards of criticism, outlines and plans of lessons made by pupils, and practice teaching before the class.

TEXT BOOKS: Briggs and Coffman's Reading in Public Schools; Haliburton and Smith's Teaching Poetry in the Grades.

READING METHODS (21) Second Year of Course III. Two periods a week for one term. This course is a continuation of Reading (20 a and 20 b).

A special effort is made to correlate the work with the directed teaching in the Training School. The students dramatize and stage some standard piece of literature. In this way, the rules of stage business, which are essential in the coaching of amateur performances, are mastered. Some time is given to the discussion of festivals and pageants. The students are able to work out their theories in the assembly periods of the Training School.

A Dramatic Club, composed of twenty-five or thirty members, chosen from the student body by the process of "trying out," gives an opportunity for developing special dramatic talent. Two standard plays are presented each year.

Those students desiring more advanced work in expression are given an opportunity to take private lessons. The fee is $5.00 per term.

DEPARTMENT OF HISTORY AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

MR. LEAR, MISS RANDOLPH, MISS BUGG, MISS WOODRUFF

The work of the first two years of the High School Course is intended to make the student conscious of the vastness and dignity of the province of history, to enlarge her sympathies and appreciations, and to bring her to regard history not as a series of disconnected facts, but as the life story of humanity, and to realize that even the vicissitudes of nations are but incidents in the steady progress of the race. Instruction in methods of study is given frequently and persistently.

The elective courses in history, economics, and sociology are designed to give the student who is fond of history an opportunity of pursuing the subject further and of gaining an introduction to the kindred sciences. She may thus fit herself for the teaching of history in the high school as well as in the grades.

The High School and Professional Courses offered by this department are as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN HISTORY AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

ANCIENT HISTORY (30 a, b) First Year. Three periods a week throughout the year. The work covered in this year extends from the earliest times to 800 A. D.

TEXT BOOK: Webster's Ancient History.

MODERN HISTORY (31 a, b) Second Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. The thread of European history is followed from the time of Charlemagne down to the present day.

TEXT BOOK: Webster's Mediaeval and Modern History.

ENGLISH HISTORY (32 a, b) Third Year. Three periods a week throughout the year. A survey of English history from the earliest times to the present is attempted. Social and industrial development and the growth of the political power of the people are the two phases that receive chief attention. In order to gain time for these studies all save the most highly significant events in the military history and foreign political relations of England are omitted from consideration.

TEXT BOOK: Cheyney's Short History of England.

ECONOMIC PROBLEMS (33 a) Fourth Year High School. Three periods a week for term A. The courses previously required in commercial geography and in the economic history of the United States may be expected to equip the student with a very considerable number of economic facts which will help her now to reach an understanding of the general laws that everywhere and under all conditions govern the business relations of men.

TEXT BOOK: Ely and Wicker's Elementary Economics.

SOCIAL PROBLEMS (33 b) Fourth Year High School, or First Year Professional of Courses II and III. Three periods a week for term B. The present social structure and social conditions in America are studied, and efforts now being put forth toward social betterment are discussed. Especial attention is given to educational activities.

TEXT BOOK: Towne's Social Problems.

BIBLICAL HISTORY (38 a, b) Fourth Year High School. Three periods a week throughout the year. (Taught by the Y. W. C. A. Secretary.)

This course is a study of the early history of the Christian Church as given in the Book of Acts. Emphasis is laid upon a knowledge of the book itself, especially as to purpose, style, and its relation to the Gospels and Epistles. This is followed by a study of the moral condition of the world in the Apostolic Age, together with a study of the power and influence of the three world-nations, and the part each played in preparing the way for the spread of the Gospel. Special consideration is given to the life of Paul, noting his providential preparation as a world-missionary, and the results he accomplished in establishing Christianity throughout the world.

TEXT BOOKS: The Book of Acts (American Revision); Sterling's Atlas of the Acts and Epistles.

AMERICAN HISTORY AND METHODS (34 a, b) Fourth Year High School. Three periods a week. In this course a survey of the history of our country is given, and a study is made of the methods of teaching history in the grades. The work of the A term extends through the War of 1812.

TEXT BOOK: Hart's New American History.

PROFESSIONAL COURSES IN HISTORY AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

AMERICAN HISTORY AND METHODS (35 a, b) First Year Professional, term A of all courses and term B of Course III. Three periods a week. The work in American History in the course is more advanced than that of the Fourth High School course (34 a, b). In the B term methods in teaching history in the grades is taken up.

TEXT BOOK: To be selected.

MEDIAEVAL AND MODERN EUROPEAN HISTORY (36 a, b) First Year of Professional Courses I, II, III, IV. Three periods a week for term A, four periods a week for term B. This course may be substituted for American History (35 a, b) by those who have had a satisfactory course in American History in a four year high school, and is intended primarily for those who expect to teach in high schools. This course is intended to make a survey of European history with special reference to the conditions preceding and giving rise to the present war.

CIVICS (37) Second Year, Group A of Course II and Groups A and B of Course III. Three periods a week for one term. The various forms of local government found in our country are studied in their present development and are rapidly traced back through American and English history to the political institutions of the Saxons. The local governments of Virginia are carefully examined in detail, both for their own sake and as types. The State governments are followed from the earliest times down to the present, Virginia being again taken as a type. The history of the formation of the Federal government is reviewed, and its present workings considered.

Through special reports based upon parallel reading an attempt is made to awaken a keener interest in present-day civic questions, such as parcel post, the referendum, city government by commission, etc.

The work of the term concludes with a brief consideration of the methods of teaching civil government in the grades.

TEXT BOOKS: Forman's Advanced Civics, Smithey's Civil Government of Virginia.

HISTORY (320 a, b) Course IV. Four periods a week throughout the year. General History to 1648. Methods of Teaching History. In this course the main facts of ancient history down to the beginning of the sixteenth century are taken up. A part of the time is given to a study of approved methods of presenting History in the high school.

¹ HISTORY (322 a, b) Course IV. Four periods a week throughout the year. Modern European History. In this course especial emphasis is laid on the period from the beginning of the nineteenth century to the present time.

¹HISTORY (323 a, b) Course IV. Four periods a week throughout the year. English History. This course deals largely with England since the close of the sixteenth century. The connection with American History, the growth of democracy, parliamentary reform, and the Eastern Question, are some of the topics receiving especial attention.

¹ POLITICAL SCIENCE (324 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. This course treats of the government of the United States.

¹ECONOMICS (325 a, b) Four periods a week. In the A term of this course the principles of Economics are taken up. The work of the B term consists of a study of Economic institutions. Such questions as labor unions, money and banking, the tariff, and trusts are considered.

¹SOCIOLOGY (326 a, b) Four periods a week. In the A term the principles of Sociology are taken up. In the B term a study is made of the more important social problems of the day.

¹These courses are elective and require as a prerequisite two years of history in professional courses here, or the equivalent. Any one of these courses will be given upon sufficient demand.

DEPARTMENT OF LATIN

MISS RICE

In the study of Latin, the following objects are kept in view:

1. Etymology of English words of Latin origin. Pupils are encouraged to look for the English derivatives of Latin words with correspondences and differences in shades of meaning.
2. Comparative Grammar. Roman forms of thought are examined in order to make a comparison with English forms. A pupil never knows that his own language contains idioms until he has studied some language other than his own. The study of one language throws light upon another.
3. Mental Discipline. The expression in the equivalent forms of one language of the thought gained in another gives power.

An effort is made throughout this work to study the government and the private life of the Romans as well as their literature and language.

The High School and Professional courses offered by this department are as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN LATIN

LATIN (40 a, b) First Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. Drill in the forms of inflection and the essentials of syntax; derivation of words; translation of easy Latin prose into English and English into Latin.

TEXT BOOK: Moore's Odes of Horace.

DEPARTMENT OF MODERN LANGUAGES

MISS SMITHEY

In addition to the general disciplinary value that comes from the serious study of a language other than the mother tongue, the work in Modern Languages is designed to develop the following:

1. Mental alertness. By training the tongue, the ear and the eye, pupils are made more alert, quicker to receive impressions, and more ready to impart their own thoughts to others. Thus they become more wide-awake.

2. Feeling for the language. An effort is made from the first lesson to enable the pupil to grasp the thought from the foreign language without the aid of translation. This gives an appreciation of the beauty and genius of the language and literature and an insight into the life and heart of the people that never comes to those who merely translate from one language into another.

3. The enlargement of ideals. The opening up of a new literature to one carries with it the privilege of entering into the intellectual and emotional life of its people. Any serious study of the manners and customs, the ideals and institutions, the successes and failures of another nation, must broaden the sympathies and give a larger view of life.

The High School and Professional courses offered by this department are as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN MODERN LANGUAGES

FRENCH (56 a, b) Third Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. In the first term the elements of the language are studied through the medium of the language itself. Frequent exercises in the simplest forms of sentence structure are required. Dictation in French is begun the first week, and is continued throughout the entire course. In the second term simple original compositions in French are assigned. Easy prose and a few lyrics are studied.

TEXT BOOKS: Walter and Ballard's Beginner's French; Guerber's Contes et Légendes.

FRENCH (51 a, b) Fourth Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. The study of French Grammar from a text book is continued in this class. French composition is continued. Translation of French into English and connected passages from English into French is a part of the work of this class. In the second term much oral and written reproduction in French of stories and anecdotes read in class is required. Every effort is made to stimulate students to become independent in grasping the thought and in discovering the meaning of new words from the context.

TEXT BOOKS: Walter and Ballard's Beginner's French; Coppée's Le Luthier de Crémone et Le Trésor; Labiche's La Cigale chez Les Fourmis; and Legouvé's Le Voyage de Monsieur Perrichon.

GERMAN (52 a, b) Third Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. The work for this year is similar to that of the second year in French. Much oral drill is given, so that students may acquire fluency in pronunciation and some feeling for the language. In the second term short original papers in German are required.

TEXT BOOKS: Bagster-Collins' First Book in German; Guerber's Mädchen und Erzählungen.

GERMAN (53 a, b) Fourth Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. The study of grammar is continued in this class. Translation from German into English and much reproduction in German of texts read in class form a part of the work of this term. In the second term more difficult texts are read, but the character of the work is the same.

TEXT BOOKS: Glück Auf; Bacon's German Composition. Short texts to be selected for this class.

SPANISH (54 a, b) Third Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. The work of the Third Year in Spanish is similar to that of the Third Year in French.

TEXT BOOKS: To be selected.

SPANISH (55 a, b) Fourth Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. The work of the Fourth Year in Spanish is similar to that of the Fourth Year in French.

TEXT BOOKS: To be selected.

PROFESSIONAL COURSES IN MODERN LANGUAGES

FRENCH (340 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. A critical study of grammar and pronunciation is made and the rapid reading of simple stories is used as a basis for reproduction and free composition.

The work of this term is the basis for the work of the whole course.

PREREQUISITES: Three units of Latin and two units of French or two units of Latin and three units of French.

FRENCH (341 a) Course IV. Four periods a week for term A. The Teaching of French. The general principles underlying the teaching of a modern language, methods of instruction, and the organization and presentation of subject matter are discussed.

TEXT BOOKS: Bohlsein's The Teaching of Modern Languages; Bréal's The Teaching of Modern Languages in Secondary Schools; Gouin's The Art of Teaching and Studying Languages; Report of Committee of Twelve.

FRENCH (341 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. Mastery of the spoken and written language is the chief purpose of this course, hence it includes much reading, both intensive and extensive, of elementary and intermediate French.

The texts read are selected according to the needs of the students.

FRENCH (342 a) Course IV. Four periods a week for term A. This course includes the reading and critical study of intermediate and advanced stories and plays, together with reproduction and free composition. The texts read in class are selected so as to give as much variety of style in French as possible.

FRENCH (342 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. This course takes up an outline study of French literature with special reference to the writers of the nineteenth century.

TEXT BOOK: Doumic's L'Histoire de la Litterature Française.

FRENCH (343 a) Course IV. Four periods a week for term A. Literature of the classic period is studied.

TEXT BOOKS: Crane's La Societe Française au Dix-Septieme Siecle; Taine's L'Ancien Régime; selected plays and letters from this period.

FRENCH (343 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. A study of the Romantic Movement in French Literature is made.

TEXT BOOK: To be selected.

GERMAN (350 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. A critical study of grammar and pronunciation is made, and the rapid reading of elementary German is used as a basis for reproduction and free composition.

The work of this term is the basis of the work of the entire course.

PREREQUISITES: Three units of Latin and two units of German, or two units of Latin and three units of German.

GERMAN (351 a) Course IV. Four periods a week for term A. The Teaching of German. The general principles underlying the teaching of modern languages, methods of instruction, and the organization and presentation of subject matter are discussed.

TEXT BOOKS: Bagster-Collins's German in Secondary Schools; Jespersen's How to Teach a Foreign Language. Note—See list of text books for French (341 a).

GERMAN (351 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. The special purpose of the work of this term is mastery of the spoken and written language, hence it includes extensive and intensive reading of elementary and intermediate German, together with oral and written reproduction of texts read and free composition.

GERMAN (352 a) Course IV. Four periods a week for term A. This is an outline course in German literature with special reference to some of the writers of the nineteenth century.

The texts read are selected with reference to the needs of the students.

GERMAN (352 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. This course takes up the reading of intermediate and advanced German with special reference to the style of the writers studied.

The texts for this course are changed from year to year.

GERMAN (353 a) Course IV. Four periods a week for term A. Some of the writers of the great classic period in German literature are studied.

GERMAN (353 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. A study of the Romantic spirit in German literature and its influence upon the writers of that period is made.

NOTE.—A beginner's class in Modern Languages is offered for students in Professional Course IV who wish a modern language as an elective and who have not had the necessary prerequisites for the regular work in this department.

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC

MISS MUNOZ, MRS. HARDY

The general aim of this department is to emphasize the intellectual, æsthetic, and social values of music, to broaden the popular conception of its function in the public school, and prepare students to teach it. The specific aims are to develop the individual student along musical lines by encouraging the independent and intelligent interpretation and expression of musical thought, and to cultivate the musical taste through the study of classical and standard compositions which have a permanent literary as well as musical value.

In the First Year, Professional, two courses in music are offered (63 a, b), followed in the Second Year by (65); and (64 a, b) followed in the Second Year by (66) or (67). Music (63 a, b) is provided for those students who wish to prepare themselves to supervise public school music, and may be taken by any student who has had Music (61 a, b) and (62 a, b) or the equivalent. Music (64 a, b) is a beginner's course, and must be taken by all students who have not had a year and a half of public school music.

A student who has had music (61 a, b) and (62 a, b) and does not wish to elect Music (63 a, b) and (65), must substitute an equivalent number of periods chosen from the third and fourth year electives not already taken.

The High School and Professional Courses offered by this department are as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN MUSIC

MUSIC (60 a, b) First and Second Years. Two periods a week throughout the year. This is a song course in unison and two-part singing. Special care is given to purity of vowel forms, to pronunciation, and to interpretation.

TEXT BOOK: The Junior Assembly Song Book.

MUSIC (61 a, b) Third Year. Two periods a week throughout the year. This course is designed for beginners in sight singing and consists of such theory as is essential to the intelligent reading of selections contained in the first two books of the average text-book series.

During the first term, the major scale, octave, tonic arpeggio, and tetrachord are considered as type forms to facilitate phrase reading. Signatures of the nine keys commonly used in public-school music are developed from scale ladders. Analysis and application of time signatures is made through study of varieties of rhythm. Reference is made to the chromatic scale, as the introduction of chromatics in a selection requires it.

Part singing is introduced during the latter part of the first term by means of rounds, canons, and simple two-part songs.

The work of the second term consists of more advanced two-part singing with constant alternation of voices, except in special cases, where the alto tendency is strong. Common intervals of two-part songs are learned. Chromatic scale is developed and reproduced in nine keys. Minor mode is introduced by means of songs containing both major and minor intervals. Study is made of the minor scale in its several forms as related to the major.

Structure and location of the major and minor triads of the major scales are studied.

The vocal work is supplemented by written work as a further means of ear and eye training.

TEXT BOOKS: Harmonic Series, Primer and First Book.

MUSIC (62 a, b) Fourth Year. Two periods a week throughout the year. This course includes a survey of the music of ancient and primitive periods and traces the development of modern music up to the present time. A classification of the most important vocal and instrumental forms is made with particular stress on folk music, considered from the historical and literary as well as musical viewpoint, and a typical song of each nation is learned.

PROFESSIONAL COURSES IN MUSIC

MUSIC (63 a, b) First Year of all courses. Two periods a week throughout the year. This is the beginning of a three-term course (63 a, b) and (65) planned for those students who wish to prepare themselves for the supervision of public school music, and may be taken by any student who has had music (61 a, b) and (62 a, b) or the equivalent, or who has had two years study of pianoforte and two years voice culture.

Term A includes more difficult part singing, melody writing in one part form, and elementary harmonic analysis, consisting of the singing of triads and chords of the seventh in all positions and inversions, also the recognizing and writing of them. Modulation is introduced and analysis of song is carried along with this work.

Term B presents general educational principles, applying them to the teaching of music. The work begins with a brief history of public school music teaching, with discussions as to the relative merits of the Fixed Do and Movable Systems. A complete course of study for public schools from kindergarten to high school is given. Practical applications of this course of study to the various conditions in ungraded, graded, and city schools is made. Definite plans of work are outlined, subject matter systematized, and methods of procedure suggested.

TEXT BOOKS: Broeckoven's Harmony; James Bates' Voice Culture for Children; Harmonic Series, Book III.

MUSIC (64 a, b) First Year, term A of all courses and term B of Course I, and Group A of Courses II and III. Two periods a week throughout the year. This is the beginning of a three-term course (64 a, b and 66 or 67) provided for those students who have had no music. The purpose of this course is to supply a basal experience in music similar to that with which the student is equipped in the elementary school branches upon entering our school. The course is essentially the same as course (61 a, b) with much more individual sight singing.

TEXT BOOKS: Harmonic Series, Primer and First Reader.

MUSIC (65) Second Year of Course I, and Group A of Courses II and III. Two periods a week for one term. This course is a continuation of (63 a, b). Students are here given the opportunity to see work as graded from kindergarten through the elementary school, and to do practice teaching under careful supervision and criticism. Students who show more than the usual proficiency may also have the experience of supervising and making plans for other teachers.

Students become familiar with the technique of class management and with the use of the tools of music teaching, such as the pitch pipe, pointer, charts, blackboard, and books. Devices for holding attention and keeping order, and plans for seating the children and for moving them are considered. Test and drill lessons and other needs of the class-room are made the subject of discussion and practice.

Training in chorus conducting is a practical feature. Suggestions are given for the selection of music and the management of assemblies for chapel exercises and special occasions.

TEXT BOOKS: Rix's Manual of Music; Seifert's Choice Songs.

REFERENCE BOOK: Farnsworth's Education Through Music.

MUSIC (66) Second Year of Course I and Group A of Course II. Two periods a week for one term. This course is a continuation of Music (64 a, b) and is a method course provided for those students who wish to teach in the kindergarten or primary grades.

A brief review of the subject matter which bears directly on the kindergarten and first three grades of public school music is made.

Special attention is given to voice study, ear training, and rhythmic studies based on the recurring accent in poetry and on song interpretation.

A study of the complete song as the basis of the child's music education is made under the following topics: The selection of songs (a) with reference to their vital relations to the child's interests and activities, (b) with reference to their melodic and rhythmic construction as the true interpretation of their content, and (c) with reference to the pitch and compass of the child's voice; method of teaching the song; observation of the simpler elements of the song, such as the phrase, measure, recurring type forms of melody and rhythm; transition from rote to note singing through the three formal steps of observing, acting and picturing of pitch, duration and pulse; visualization of notation of familiar songs; and partnership work as a preparation for absolute sight singing.

The use of the chromatic pitch pipe in the giving and frequent rapid testing of pitch is taught.

TEXT BOOK: Rix's Manual of Music.

REFERENCE TEXT BOOK: Farnsworth's Education Through Music.

MUSIC (67) First Year Group B of Courses II and III and Second Year Group A of Course III. Two periods a week for one term. This course is a continuation of (64 a, b) and is a method course provided for those students who wish to teach in the intermediate and grammar grades. The methods taught are based on those used in the Training School from the fourth to the eighth grades.

Special study of the classification and use of voices for part singing is made.

Lessons are given in the theory and practice of teaching part songs.

A tentative course adaptable to the average school is outlined.

TEXT BOOK: Rix's Manual of Music.

REFERENCE TEXT BOOK: Farnsworth's Education Through Music.

A course in musical appreciation is given throughout the entire course by means of Victrola records selected especially for that purpose.

A Glee Club, composed of from fifty to seventy-five members selected by the director of music from the music classes and best singers of the student body, receives weekly training in two, three, and four-part singing. Public recitals are given once or twice a year.

One period each week is devoted to training the entire student body in community singing.

DEPARTMENT OF MATHEMATICS

MISS LONDON, MISS TALIAFERRO

In this department courses are offered in arithmetic, algebra, geometry, and trigonometry, including method courses in teaching arithmetic in the elementary schools, and method courses in teaching algebra and plane geometry in the secondary schools.

The aim of the high school work is to have the student see the unity of the subject, the few underlying principles, and the relation and dependence of all subsequent work upon these few principles, showing that each is merely another language for the solution of the problems of the others.

Clearness of statement in both oral and written work is insisted upon, in recognition of the fact that no better opportunity can be afforded for drill in neat habits, and in the use of truth-telling, carefully chosen English.

The aim of the professional work in arithmetic is to train the students to teach arithmetic. To do this successfully it is necessary, first, that they know the subject matter; second, that they know the best methods of presenting it; and, third, that they have a real and living interest in the subject and a comprehensive appreciation of its place in the school curriculum. With these ends in view, a thorough review of the subject matter of arithmetic from the teacher's point of view is given, a text book is used, and the material is chosen to fit the needs of each particular class. A discussion of methods of teaching arithmetic in the grades follows. The work is taken up both topically and by grades, and the most approved methods of teaching the subject discussed.

The aim of the method course in mathematics is to train students to teach algebra and plane geometry in the first and second years of the secondary schools. To avoid the tendency to treat these branches of mathematics as isolated subjects bearing no relation to each other or to arithmetic, the student is brought to appreciate the unity of mathematics, by observing how each subject supplements and broadens the mathematical truths treated in the others.

The High School and Professional Courses offered by this department are as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN MATHEMATICS

ALGEBRA (70 a, b) First Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. The work of the first term includes the fundamental operations, the use of symbols of aggregation, the combining and simplifying of simple equations, the various methods of factoring, and common divisors and multiples. The work of the second continues through Chapter XIV.

TEXT BOOK: Wells and Hart's New High School Algebra.

ALGEBRA (71 a) Second Year. Five periods a week for term A. An abridged course in secondary algebra is completed, beginning with a rapid review of the work of the previous term.

TEXT BOOK: Wells and Hart's New High School Algebra.

ARITHMETIC (72 b) Second Year. Five periods a week for term B. The aim of this course is to review, complete if necessary, and to extend the previous work in arithmetic. The material is chosen each year to meet the needs of the class.

TEXT BOOK: Smith's Modern Advanced Arithmetic.

PLANE GEOMETRY (73 a, b) Third Year. Four periods a week throughout the year. In the first term simple geometrical construction work is done. The students are then led to frame and demonstrate theorems based upon these constructions. The ground covered is usually the first two books of Plane Geometry. In the second term an abridged course in Plane Geometry is completed.

TEXT BOOK: Wentworth-Smith's Plane Geometry.

SOLID GEOMETRY (74 a) Fourth Year. Four periods a week for term A. An abridged course in Solid Geometry is completed.

TEXT BOOK: Wentworth-Smith's Solid Geometry.

PLANE TRIGONOMETRY (75 b) Fourth Year. Four periods a week for term B. A brief course in Plane Trigonometry is given with special attention to the practical application of the subject.

TEXT BOOK: Robbins' Plane Trigonometry.

PROFESSIONAL COURSES IN MATHEMATICS

ARITHMETIC AND METHODS (76 a, b) First Year, term A of all courses, term B of Course III. Three periods a week throughout the year. The first term of this course is given to reviewing and vitalizing the subject matter of arithmetic. The second term is devoted to general work in methods. A standard course of study is outlined, and the most approved methods of teaching the subject in the grades are discussed.

TEXT BOOKS: For term A—To be selected. For term B—J. W. A. Young's The Teaching of Mathematics, David Eugene Smith's The Teaching of Elementary Mathematics, Brown and Coffman's How to Teach Arithmetic, and The Training School Course of Study.

COLLEGE ALGEBRA (360 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. Some review of high school algebra comes first, with emphasis upon the principles underlying the mechanical operations, correlation with arithmetic, the importance of checking results. The text-book is followed rather closely. Oral and written reports are made from required reading.

TEXT BOOK: Fite's College Algebra.

METHOD OF TEACHING HIGH SCHOOL MATHEMATICS (361 a) Course IV. Four periods a week for term A. This course begins with such general topics as the reasons for teaching the different branches of mathematics, a brief history of their development, the correlation of subjects with each other and with other courses in the curriculum, the subject-matter to be offered. A study of the presentation of typical parts of arithmetic, algebra, and geometry is made next, special attention being given to the introductory work; and the viewpoint of both teacher and pupil is considered, particularly with reference to arousing the interest of the latter. The text-book work is supplemented by the reading and discussion of reports, magazine articles, and other books dealing with modern tendencies in the teaching of mathematics. Directed teaching and observation are included in the work of this term.

TEXT BOOKS: J. W. A. Young's The Teaching of Mathematics, David Eugene Smith's The Teaching of Geometry.

SOLID GEOMETRY (361 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. The first part of this term is given to original exercises in Plane Geometry and to strengthening class weaknesses disclosed by this work. The usual propositions and original exercises of Solid Geometry follow. Various matters of interest to the teacher of geometry are discussed, and oral reports, chiefly along historical lines, are required.

TEXT BOOKS: Any standard Plane Geometry. Wells and Hart's Solid Geometry.

PLANE TRIGONOMETRY (362 a) Course IV. Four periods a week for term A. In the beginning of the course the students are led to be independent of the book in discovering the constancy of the trigonometric ratios, in building a simple table of natural functions, and in originating formulae and problems. Some field work, with improvised instruments, is given to impress the practical nature of the subject. The usual topics are studied, and the question of method is kept in mind.

TEXT BOOK: Palmer and Leigh's Plane Trigonometry.

HISTORY OF MATHEMATICS (362 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. The student derives an intelligent appreciation of the science from a knowledge of its sources and of its development through the centuries, in spite of the obstacles which, from time to time, retarded its growth. A very human interest is gained from the study of the lives of those who have contributed to this growth.

REFERENCES: Histories of Mathematics and magazine articles.

PLANE ANALYTICAL GEOMETRY (363 a).

ELEMENTARY COURSE IN THE CALCULUS (364 b).

DIFFERENTIAL CALCULUS (365 a).

INTEGRAL CALCULUS (366 b).

RAPID REVIEW OF HIGH SCHOOL MATHEMATICS (367 b).

The five courses listed above, 363 a to 367 b, inclusive, are offered as electives in the Fourth Year of Course IV. Each course runs four periods a week for one term. Students majoring in mathematics are required to take two of these courses, the selection being made with reference to the needs and wishes of the class.

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICS AND CHEMISTRY

MISS WINSTON

In this department the effort is made to develop the scientific habit of thought, to teach the student to observe accurately and to make application of her knowledge to the facts which are common in her daily experience.

The High School and Professional Courses offered by this department are as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN PHYSICS AND CHEMISTRY

PHYSICS (80 a, b) Third Year. Five periods a week throughout the year. This course consists of lectures with illustrative experiments, combined with recitations, and includes the solving of numerous problems. The work of the first term takes up sound, light, and heat; the second term, magnetism and electricity, and the mechanics of solids, liquids, and gases.

The prerequisites for physics are algebra, through quadratic equations and mensuration, in arithmetic.

TEXT BOOK: Carhart and Chute's Physics with Applications.

CHEMISTRY (81 a, b) Third Year. Two double laboratory periods and three recitation periods a week throughout the year. Inorganic Chemistry. The first term deals with non-metals. In the second term the metals are studied by means of a brief course in Qualitative Analysis.

TEXT BOOKS: Brownlee and Others' First Principles of Chemistry, Stoddard's Qualitative Analysis.

LABORATORY FEE: One dollar per term.

PROFESSIONAL COURSES IN PHYSICS AND CHEMISTRY

PHYSICS (370 a, b) Course IV. Five periods a week throughout the year. This course includes a review and extension of High School Physics. The aim is to furnish a background for the prospective teacher of Physics. With this end in view, much time is given to the development of theories and to the mathematical side of the subject, together with its industrial applications.

A laboratory course accompanies this, dealing with the fundamental phenomena of Physics in a quantitative way.

This course presupposes a knowledge of the elements of Plane Trigonometry.

CHEMISTRY (371 a, b) Elective in Course IV and required in First Year of Course V. Three double laboratory periods and two single recitation periods a week throughout the year. The A term of this course takes up advanced Inorganic Chemistry, emphasizing the theoretical side. The B term treats Qualitative Analysis and sufficient Quantitative Analysis to illustrate volumetric, gravimetric, and colorimetric methods.

LABORATORY FEE: One dollar per term.

CHEMISTRY (372 a, b) Organic Chemistry, Elective in Course IV, and required in Second Year of Course V. Four periods a week throughout the year. Term A—aliphatic series; Term B— carbocyclic series.

LABORATORY FEE: One dollar per term.

CHEMISTRY (373 b) Chemistry of Foods and Nutrition. Second Year of Course V. Three double laboratory periods and two recitation periods a week for one term. Students specializing in Home Economics take this course instead of the B term of Chemistry (372).

DEPARTMENT OF BIOLOGY

Biology, General Science, Agriculture

MR. BRETNALL, MISS STUBBS, MISS SNOW

In this department courses are provided for students entering the regular work, and for students wishing to specialize in this department to fit themselves for teaching the biological sciences.

The aim of the work is to develop interest in nature and to establish habits of accurate observation, exact statement, and independent thought. It is believed that the study of living organisms, their structure, activities, and relations, will give the student a broader and deeper appreciation of all life, while a scientific viewpoint is essential for the solving of many of the problems which confront the public-school teacher. This training will better fit her to inspire and direct the spirit of observation and investigation in her pupils, thus carrying into the public schools principles of accuracy and thoughtful inquiry, in addition to a broader love for nature and an interest in the life-processes surrounding us.

The laboratory is equipped with microscopes, aquarium with running water, skeletons, casts, charts, and various apparatus and materials for laboratory work and class demonstrations. There is the beginning of a museum. All work is taught on a laboratory basis, or by class demonstrations. Much field work is done; the climate and the locality are especially favorable for the latter. All the work is made, therefore, as concrete as possible. The stereopticon is used in all work.

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN BIOLOGY

INTRODUCTION TO SCIENCE (100 a, b) First Year. The main aim of this course is to teach the student to observe the physical and chemical phenomena around her, and the application of these in the industrial pursuits, and also in nature. To this end the different industrial plants of the town are visited and studied, and field work is done in the study of physiographical features. The course aims to lead the student to the study of biology, physics, chemistry, and physiography. It gives a foundation for these sciences so that the student may pursue them with much greater profit.

TEXT Book: Clark's Introduction to Science.

ELEMENTARY BIOLOGY (90 a, b) Second Year. Two double and two single periods throughout the year. The aim of this course is to develop the student's power of observation and thought. The course covers the subjects of Botany, Zoology, and Physiology. The course aims to give mental development and culture, but in every way possible relates the work to every-day life so as to make it of practical value.

The work is done by recitations, laboratory work, and field work. The library is used for reference.

TEXT BOOKS: Hunter's Civic Biology, Sharp's Laboratory Guide to Accompany Hunter's Biology, Coulter's Analytical Key to the Flowering Plants.

PROFESSIONAL COURSES IN BIOLOGY

HYGIENE (91) First Year of Course I and Second Year of Courses II, III and V. Three periods a week for one term. This work consists of lectures, recitations, and assigned reading in the various phases of Hygiene and Sanitation, in which both civic and personal hygiene are considered. Special emphasis is laid upon those parts of the subject which will be of value to teachers; school hygiene, public sanitation, first aid to the injured, and diagnosis of diseases apt to occur among school children.

The work is given a physiological background, giving the student a broad basis so she may adapt the work to the conditions she meets in teaching. This work is illustrated as much as possible. Much library reference work is done.

TEXT Book: Hough and Sedgwick's Hygiene and Sanitation.

NATURE STUDY (92) Second Year of Courses I, II, and III. Three periods a week for one term. Since Nature Study is the logical beginning of the study of either the natural or the physical sciences the course is so arranged that the students pursuing it will be able to teach the Nature Study and Elementary Science work in the grades.

The aims of Nature Study are to increase the powers of observation and reasoning, to foster an interest in agricultural problems, to cultivate the æsthetic nature, and to show the beauty and interest in the commonplace. It gleans from many of the sciences, and by the presentation of such subjects as flower structure, bird study, life histories of insects, and life in a brook, fills a need by supplying much general scientific knowledge.

The field excursions enable the students to make observations of animal and plant life and to understand better the laws and forces of nature.

REFERENCES: Comstock's Handbook of Nature Study, Holtz's Nature Study, Scott's Nature Study and the Child, and other library references. Charts and other illustrated material are largely used.

AGRICULTURE (93 b) First Year, Group B of Courses II and III. Two double periods and one single period a week for term B. This course gives an extensive and systematic acquaintance with the principles and practices of agriculture.

The course is based on the school garden. The students have practical experience in the real work of gardening. Two plans are used in the school garden: The student constructs an individual garden that she may learn the value of that system; besides, a model home garden is made. Laboratory work is carried on with soils, seed-testing and other agricultural problems. Neighboring poultry plants, gardens, dairy, grain, and tobacco farms, offer exceptional opportunity for the agricultural classes to gain a practical knowledge of several types of farming. The following subjects suggest the line of work: Soils (types, drainage, fertilizers, etc.); Plant Production (farm crops, gardening, weeds, etc.); Animal Husbandry (dairying, poultry, etc.); Horticulture; Farm Mechanics, etc.

By constant use of the Farmers' Bulletins and other material sent out by the Agricultural College at Blacksburg and the District Agricultural Schools and by occasional addresses from the farm demonstrators and instructors from the above-named places, the students are brought into closer touch with the agricultural problems of the State and the best means of coping with them.

REFERENCES: Warren's Elements of Agriculture; Davis's Home and School Gardening.

INTRODUCTION TO GENERAL SCIENCE (380 b) First Year of Course IV. Three periods a week for term B. This course takes up the elements of heat, light, electricity, mechanics, etc., with a view of bringing out the bearing of science upon practical every-day life. The correlation of the various sciences with each other and the application to Physical Geography is developed.

TEXT BOOK: Caldwell and Ekenberry's General Science.

ADVANCED BIOLOGY (381 a, b) Elective in Course IV and required in First Year of Course V. Two double periods a week for laboratory work and field excursions and two lecture periods throughout the year. The chief aim of this course is to give teachers the necessary qualifications for the teaching of Botany, Zoölogy, and Hygiene in the high school.

A considerable amount of subject-matter is covered in each of the above-named subjects; individual experiments and demonstrations are made in all of them. A laboratory note book containing accurate statements of methods, observations, and conclusions is required of each student.

The selection of material for class use and demonstration, with especial reference to the material which will best suit the presentation of these subjects in the high school, is considered at length.

PREREQUISITES: Two units of science, one of which must be Natural Science.

TEXTS: Gager's Fundamentals of Botany, Peabody and Hunt's Elementary Biology, Coulter's Analytical Key to the Flowering Plants. Text books are supplemented by library reference.

BACTERIOLOGY (382 b) Elective in Course IV. Two double and two single periods a week for term B. Laboratory work, lectures, demonstrations and class-room discussions.

A consideration of the economic relations of bacteria, with particular reference to the part which they play in personal and community health, household management, agriculture, and the industries.

PREREQUISITES: Advanced Biology (381 a, b).

TEXT BOOK: Lipman's Bacteria in Relation to Country Life.

HUMAN PHYSIOLOGY (382 a). Elective in Course IV and required in Second Year of Course V. One double and three single periods a week for term A. Laboratory work, lectures, demonstrations, recitations, and class room discussions of laboratory work and library readings. The general facts of anatomy are mastered and a careful study of the physiological processes of the body is made. The laws of hygiene are deduced from this work, and they are related to the teacher's work in the school room. Special attention is given to the study of digestion.

PREREQUISITE: Advanced Biology (381 a, b).

TEXT: Stiles's Human Physiology, supplemented by library reference.

AGRICULTURE (383 a) Course IV. Two single and two double periods a week for term A. Laboratory work, field studies, visits to nearby farms, lectures, demonstrations, and class-room discussions.

Designed primarily to fit teachers for conducting classes in agriculture in the high schools of Virginia, hence the usual topics of high school agriculture are considered here. Throughout the course every attempt is made to apply the teachings of science to productive farming, to acquaint the student with the many agencies for disseminating agricultural knowledge, and the obligation on teachers of bringing about a close harmony between their students and the county demonstrators.

PREREQUISITES: Advanced Biology (381 a, b), Bacteriology (382 a).

TEXT BOOK: Jackson and Daugherty's Agriculture Through the Laboratory and School Garden, supplemented by library reading.

THE TEACHING OF BIOLOGY AND RELATED SCIENCES (383 b)
Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. Lectures, de-monsstrations, and class-room discussions.

A consideration of the educational aims and values of sciences in general, and of the biological sciences in particular; the means and methods of presenting these subjects in the later years of the grammar school and in all of the years of the high school, organization of courses of study in Introduction to Science, Elementary Biology, Botany, Zoölogy, Hygiene, and Agriculture; planning, equipping and maintaining a laboratory; collecting and preserving material for study.

PREREQUISITES: Advanced Biology (381 a, b), Bacteriology (382 a), Human Biology (382 b), and Agriculture (383 a).

TEXT BOOKS: Lloyd and Bigelow's The Teaching of Biology, McMurry's Teaching of Elementary Science.

DEPARTMENT OF GEOGRAPHY

MISS ASHTON

Geography has long been recognized as one of the most important cultural subjects of the school curriculum. Few subjects equal it in opportunity offered for logical and systematic thinking. By directed observation interest is aroused in one's surroundings, and life is enriched by increased enjoyment through appreciation of the wonderful working out of nature's laws, while the imagination is stimulated by the transference of experience thus gained through the interpretation of the known to the comprehension of the unknown. If properly taught, world geography broadens the horizon and increases sympathy and understanding between peoples, thus tending to further the spirit of peace and good-will throughout the world. In a practical way geography is of importance in the interpretation of what is read in current topics, history, and literature, and in linking the world in one commercial whole.

The aim of the work in the Department of Geography is threefold:

First, to train the mind of the student to observe closely and accurately the world in which we live, to note the forces at work moulding its surface and fitting it to be the home of man, to reason accurately upon the phenomena presented by observation, and to express clearly and concisely the conclusions arrived at, always tracing the relation between cause and effect.

Second, by the fullest possible presentation of the races of mankind, their homes, industries, and habits, to lead the student to wider sympathies and broader views. The process of tracing the relation between geographical conditions and life responses is a mental discipline of the highest value.

Third, to prepare the student to teach the subject in the common schools.

The High School and Professional Courses offered by this department are as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL

COMMERCIAL GEOGRAPHY (101 a, b) Third Year. Three periods a week throughout the year. In this course the principal commodities of commerce, their uses, the areas producing each, and the geographic factors affecting their production and distribution are studied. Progress in industrial development is noted, and ancient and modern trade routes are compared. The influence of geographic conditions on human progress and the interdependence of nations are emphasized. The United States is studied in detail, and the most important countries of the world are briefly reviewed, attention being given constantly to the relation between cause and effect. An acquaintance with the graphic representation of values and the preparation of special reports are included.

TEXT BOOK: J. Russell Smith's Commerce and Industry.

PROFESSIONAL

PRINCIPLES OF GEOGRAPHY (102 a) First Year. Three periods a week for term A. Required of all students doing first year professional work. This course gives a review of the fundamental principles of geography, together with the application of those principles to life. The work includes the main facts and principles of mathematical geography, daily observation of the weather and weather forecasting, a comprehensive study of climate, weathering, erosion, vulcanism, etc. Problems are given to stimulate independent thinking, and the relation of physical phenomena to life is emphasized. Field and laboratory work are included.

TEXT BOOK: Salisbury, Barrows, and Tower's Modern Geography.

GEOGRAPHY AND METHODS (103 b) First Year, Course III. Three periods a week for term B. This course is a continuation of (102 a), arranged for those students who expect to teach in the grammar grades. The work of the previous term is continued until the remaining principles of geography not covered in the first term have been reviewed. The major part of the time is devoted to a review of the subject matter of geography taught in the intermediate and upper grades, with methods of presentation. Included in the work are a study of the scope of geography, the aims and content of geography in the various grades, correlation with other subjects, text books and their use, map reading, making, and filling, and field work. Special reports are made and type lessons given. Opportunity is offered the student for acquaintance with sources of material, reference books, atlases, supplementary readers, exhibits, etc., where to obtain them and how to use them.

TEXT BOOKS: Salisbury, Barrows, and Tower's Modern Geography, Dodge and Kirchwey's The Teaching of Geography.

GEOGRAPHY AND METHODS (102 b) First Year, Course II, Three periods a week for term B Group A. This course is a continuation of (102 a), arranged for those students who expect to teach in the primary grades. The work of the previous term is continued until the remaining principles of geography not covered in the first term have been reviewed, but the major part of the time is devoted to the study of the subject matter adapted to primary school geography and to the methods of teaching it. The selection and organization of material and the preparation of special reports form an important part of the work. A study of the scope of geography, the aims and content of geography in the various grades, correlation with other subjects, text-books and their use, map reading, making, and filling, and field work, are also included. Type lessons are prepared and the means of introducing the text to the child are discussed. Opportunity is offered the student for acquaintance with sources of material, reference books, supplementary readers, exhibits, etc., where to obtain them and how to use them.

TEXT BOOKS: Salisbury, Barrows, and Tower's Modern Geography, Dodge and Kirchwey's The Teaching of Geography.

ECONOMIC GEOGRAPHY (105 b) First Year, Course IV. Three periods a week for term B. This course includes a study of the most important regions of the world, the geographic conditions affecting the economic development of each, the natural resources and their use, trade relations, and the significance of the above in the activities of man. The purpose of the course is not only to broaden the vision and give the modern point of view, but to fit the student to teach geography in the upper grades. While the major part of the time is devoted to subject matter, some attention is given to the greater pedagogical principles that apply to the teaching of geography.

TEXT BOOK: To be selected.

THE INFLUENCE OF GEOGRAPHY ON AMERICAN HISTORY (390 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. In this course a study is made of the geographic conditions leading to the discovery of America and the factors determining the location of permanent settlements on the continent, the subsequent expansion from the Atlantic seaboard, and the development of the United States into a world power. Students of history as well as of geography will find the course of value. A familiarity with the fundamental principles of geography and the main facts of American history is presupposed. Open to third and fourth year students.

TEXT BOOKS: Ellen Churchill Semple's American History and Its Geographic Conditions, Brigham's Geographic Influences in American History.

POLITICAL GEOGRAPHY (391 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. This course includes a treatment of the geographic conditions which influence the development of nations. Each of the leading nations of the world is studied, the elements of strength or of weakness, the economic status and the basis for the position each holds in the group, the international relations, and the probable future of each, emphasis being given to European conditions. This course is of special value to students of Modern European History. Open to third and fourth year students.

PREREQUISITE: Geography (102 a), or its equivalent.

GEOLOGY (392 b) Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. This course includes a study of the geological processes and their relation to life, brief treatment of the most important phases of structural and historical geology, practice in reading and interpreting topographic maps, field excursions. Open to third and fourth year students.

PREREQUISITE: Geography (102), or its equivalent.

TEXT BOOK: Chamberlin and Salisbury's Introductory Geology.

COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL GEOGRAPHY (393 b) Courses IV and V. Four periods a week for term B. This course deals with the factors influencing the production and distribution of the principal commodities of commerce, transportation routes and the development of trade, causes of industrial progress, and a brief treatment of type industries. Offered as an elective in Courses IV and V.

DEPARTMENT OF INDUSTRIAL ARTS

MRS. HARDY, MISS MIX, MISS MCLESTER

It is believed that an intelligent understanding and a sympathetic appreciation of the fundamental processes by means of which mankind satisfies its material wants and needs is prerequisite and essential to a well-rounded, liberal education.

It is furthermore believed that this understanding and appreciation can be acquired only by acquaintance with and manipulation in the simple processes employed in industry.

The courses offered do not aim to prepare the student for a vocation any more than a study of literature prepares her to be a poet, or than a study of music prepares her to be a musician; but throughout the different courses an attempt is made to give a general understanding and insight into the fundamental processes of typical modern industries, and to equip the student with sufficient technic and ability in the use of tools and materials to teach the subjects in the elementary schools.

The projects for the laboratory work are selected from the large units of industry: foods, textiles, metals, wood, clay, and other earth products.

The recitation periods are devoted to a study of the place of industrial arts in the elementary school; distinction between industrial arts education and vocational training; materials and processes involved in the transformation of raw materials; its possibilities for satisfying the demands of the child, psychologically considered; the relation of the industrial arts to the fine arts, to nature study, to geography, to history, to arithmetic, and to other elementary school subjects; organization of courses of study; the use of the environment, pictures, lantern slides, and books in the study of industrial arts; methods of presentation.

The High School and Professional courses offered by this department are as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN INDUSTRIAL ARTS

INDUSTRIAL ARTS (110 a, b) Second Year. Two double periods each week throughout the year. This is a course in household mechanics, and consists of such projects as the following: repairing furniture, gluing, upholstering, painting, varnishing, staining, soldering, picture framing, mending utensils, and the construction of simple projects, such as waste baskets, taborets, window boxes, etc. The purpose of this course is to acquaint students with the tools, materials, and technic of making and repairing simple things about the house

Laboratory Fee: One dollar each term.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS (111 a, b) Fourth Year. Two double laboratory periods a week throughout the year. This course consists in projects in paper, wood, clay, textiles, and metals; the elements of mechanical drawing; the application of design to projects; readings and discussions.

The aim of this course is to secure for the student an intelligent understanding of, and ability in handling, the tools and materials that are employed in the work, and to give an elementary knowledge of the process of manufacture. The projects are selected from the following list: simplex note book, portfolio with pockets, small commercial book, hand-kerchief or glove box, desk set, picture frame, simple furniture, simple pottery—hand-made pieces, molding in plaster of paris forms, simple projects in weaving, copper bowl or tray, etc.

Laboratory Fee: One dollar each term.

PROFESSIONAL COURSES IN INDUSTRIAL ARTS

TYPES OF INDUSTRY (112 a) First Year of all courses. Two recitation periods each week for term A.

The course attempts to make a general survey of Industry as a whole with the aim in view of giving a general understanding of typical industrial processes and operations. The problems taken up are: The social and commercial rating of different industries, the training prerequisite to entering the different industries, the possibilities of promotion and advancement for the workers, and the "vocational" possibilities of the different industries as contrasted with merely the "occupational" activities.

The class work is conducted largely by the use of lantern slides, together with discussions, and assigned readings. A text will be announced later.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS: (113 b) First Year of Group A Course II. One double laboratory period and one single recitation period each week for term B. This course is arranged for those students who expect to teach in the primary grades. The aim is to work out such type projects as may be suitable for primary grades. The projects are selected from the large units mentioned above. By means of excursions, readings, pictures, and lantern slides, a study is made of typical modern industries and processes of manufacture.

TEXT BOOKS: Cole's Industrial Arts for the Elementary School, Bonser and Russell's Industrial Education, and Dewey's Schools of To-morrow.

Laboratory Fee: One dollar each term.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS (114 b) First Year Group A of Course III. One double laboratory period and one single recitation period per week for term B. This course is arranged for those students who expect to teach in grammar grades. Such projects are selected and worked out as may be used in the grammar grades. In this, as in all other courses, the relation between Industrial Arts and other subjects is pointed out and discussed. A study is made of typical modern industries and processes of manufacturing.

TEXT BOOKS: Cole's Industrial Arts for the Elementary School; Bonser and Russell's Industrial Education, and Dewey's Schools of Tomorrow.

Laboratory Fee: One dollar each term.

INDUSTRIAL OCCUPATIONS (117) First Year Group B and Second Year Group A of Course II. Two single periods a week for one term. The aim of this course is to give an intelligent and inquiring attitude towards industrial work in the elementary school system, a tangible basis for selection of subject matter for primary grades, and methods of teaching it. The work has special reference to the problems of Grades I, II, III, and IV. The course also aims to enable the students to acquire skill in, and standards for doing, the industrial work suited to primary grades. The following topics are considered: A general survey of industrial phases of present-day education; the relative place and educative value of this work in the lower grades; problems of subject matter in relation to environment, child interests, and other subjects of the curriculum; method with emphasis placed upon self-direction. Much of this work is accomplished by, and based upon, observation in the Training School. Students do as much practical work as time permits.

Laboratory Fee: Fifty cents.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS (118) Second Year Group A of Course III. One double and one single period per week for one term. This course is a continuation of Industrial Arts (114 b) and bears directly upon the problems in the grammar grades; modern principles underlying organization of industrial arts in the elementary school; organization of courses of study showing relations with other subjects in the curriculum; methods of study and presentation of Industrial Arts; use of environment, pictures, etc.; and observation and directed teaching in the Training School.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS (119) Second Year Group B of Courses II and III. One double laboratory period and one single recitation period per week for term A.

This course is arranged for those students who expect to teach in rural schools. The projects are such as may be practically worked out in a rural community with little equipment, and in their selection rural needs and interests are kept in mind. The following is a suggestive list of projects: bird house, dog kennel, flower box, work in concrete, simple repairing and mending of furniture, utensils, etc.

Throughout the course emphasis is laid upon a study of rural needs and the construction of such projects as are practical and applicable to rural conditions.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS (400 b) Household Mechanics. Elective in Third Year of Course V. Two double periods a week for term B. This course aims to acquaint the student with the proper use of tools and materials that are required in making simple furniture, labor-saving devices, repairing furniture, staining and painting, repairing plumbing, and various other activities of a mechanical nature that every manager of a household should be able to perform. The following is a suggestive list of projects that are worked out in class: making a simple piece of furniture, repairing leaky spigots, hanging wall paper, soldering, mending broken utensils, etc.

DEPARTMENT OF DRAWING

MISS COULLING, MRS. HARDY

The purpose of the work in drawing is to train the powers of observation, secure some degree of skill in expression, develop originality, and cultivate an appreciation of the beautiful.

In the First Professional Year two courses in drawing are offered: (123 a, b) followed in the Second Year by (127), and (124 a and 125 b, or 126 b) followed in the Second Year by (128 or 129). Drawing (123 a, b) is provided for those students who wish to prepare to supervise drawing in the public schools, and may be taken by any student who has had drawing (121 a, b and 122 a, b) or the equivalent. Drawing (124 a, with 125 b or 126 b) is a beginner's course, and is for students who have not had previous training in drawing. A student who has had drawing (121 a, b and 122 a, b) and does not wish to take drawing (123 a, b) must substitute an equivalent number of periods chosen from the Third and Fourth Year electives not already taken.

The High School and Professional courses offered by this department are as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN DRAWING

DRAWING (120 a, b) First Year. Two periods a week throughout the year. This is a general course in freehand and mechanical drawing, design and color, with some lessons in æsthetic appreciation and includes the following:

Nature drawing in the fall and spring; design units developed from nature motives, and applied to cushion top, curtain border, or other definite end; bowl and vase designed, colored, studied as to its use as a decorative object and receptacle for flowers; posters and book covers for lettering.

decoration, color; study of some of the famous pictures with lessons in selecting, framing, and hanging pictures; copying of good color schemes and their application in working out color harmonies for a room, costume, or similar definite end; and mechanical drawing of lines, planes, and simple projections.

DRAWING (121 a, b) Third Year. Two periods a week throughout the year. This is an elementary course for those who have had no drawing and includes: pictorial representation of grasses, flowers, and fruits in pencil outline, and gray wash and color; simple landscape composition from photographs in charcoal and in wash, in two or three values; still-life composition of curvilinear forms singly and in groups of two in shaded outline, and suggested light and shade; design, constructive and decorative, to be applied when possible, including straight-line designs on squared paper for borders, surfaces, book covers, cutting of bowls and vases, designs of articles to be made in wood and basketry; lettering; freehand perspective of curvilinear forms and rectilinear forms in parallel perspective; and study of color and design. Throughout the course the principles of balance, rhythm, and harmony are emphasized in working out all problems.

DRAWING (122 a, b) Fourth Year. Two periods a week throughout the year. The work of the first term takes up landscape composition, trees related to a given area, from copy, from nature, in line, gray wash, color; flower composition; angular perspective and application in drawing familiar objects; design units made from insect, plant and abstract motives applied. In the second term there is a course in historic ornament and art appreciation, illustrated with charts and pictures.

PREREQUISITE: Drawing (121 a, b) or its equivalent.

PROFESSIONAL COURSES IN DRAWING

DRAWING (123 a, b) First Year of all courses. Two periods a week throughout the year. This course is for those who have had (121 a, b and 122 a, b) or the equivalent, and wish to do advanced work in order to become special teachers of drawing in the public schools. Those who take this course follow it with (127) and are excused from all other Professional drawing.

The course includes: representation drawing in full light and shade in different mediums; blackboard sketching; pose drawing, students as models; original designs illustrating the principles of subordination and rhythmic repetition, line, dark and light, color; design units from plant, insect, and abstract motives; stencils and wood blocks; color scales, color notes from nature; color harmonies from copy, original, applied.

During the latter part of this course some method work is given to prepare for the teaching to follow the next fall.

DRAWING (124 a) First Year of all courses. Two periods a week for term A. This course is arranged for those First Year Professional students who have had no drawing and includes: study line of arrangements for borders and corners; spray composition from fall growths in pencil and brush; color harmonies with the making of color scales; given outlines filled in with monochromatic, analogous, or complementary harmonies; decorative units made from seed pods or flowers worked out in a border and a surface in black and white and in color; and lettering applied to posters, bookbacks, initials, and monograms.

DRAWING (125 b) First Year Group A of Course II. Two periods a week for term B. This course is a continuation of (124 a) arranged for those students who are preparing to teach in the primary grades of city schools.

It includes representation drawing, the principles of design, color harmony, blackboard sketching, and some pose and animal drawing.

DRAWING (126 b) First Year Group A of Course III. Two periods a week for term B. This course is a continuation of (124 a) arranged for those students who are preparing to teach in intermediate and grammar grades of city schools.

It includes nature drawing, arrangement of still-life groups in a given space, studies to illustrate the perspective principle in curvilinear and rectilinear objects, color harmonies, vase designing, use of abstract spots and nature units in design, blackboard drawing.

DRAWING (126½ b) First Year Group B of Courses II and III. Two periods a week for term B. No prerequisites. This is a course partly in art appreciation and partly in drawing and handwork and includes: study of pictures to know how to select them for home and school decoration; blackboard drawing; illustrative drawing; lettering and its use in designing book covers and posters; study of color harmony with application to interior decoration and dress; vase cutting and coloring with application to flower arrangements; and the use of simple nature motifs in designs for border, surface, and decorative spot.

DRAWING (127) Second Year of Course I and Group A of Courses II and III. Two periods a week for one term. This is a course in theory and methods to follow (123 a, b) for those preparing to be special teachers of drawing in public schools.

The course is similar to (128) and (129), but more intensive. Sargent's How Children Learn to Draw is the basal text used. Other texts are compared with this.

Students taking this course are given additional teaching of drawing in several different grades.

DRAWING (128) Second Year of Course I and Group A of Course II. Two periods a week for one term. This is a course in methods of teaching drawing for those preparing to teach in the kindergarten and primary grades.

Sargent's How Children Learn to Draw is used as a guide in the study of courses of study in drawing. Different systems of drawing are examined critically, lesson plans written and discussed, and practice in drawing is continued throughout the course in relation to each topic under consideration.

DRAWING (129) Second Year Group A of Course III. Two periods a week for one term. This is a course in methods of teaching drawing for those preparing to teach in the intermediate and grammar grades.

Sargent's How Children Learn to Draw is used as a guide in planning courses of study in drawing. Sets of drawing books are examined carefully, and their relative values considered. With the work in methods as much time as possible is given to continued practice in drawing.

DRAWING AND DESIGN (410 a) First Year of Course V. Four periods a week for term A. This course is planned for students specializing in Home Economics, and includes: study of lines of varying widths and design motifs made from line combinations with application to a definite project; abstract spot-arrangement in a line over a surface; simple and compound courses applied in line rhythms; adaptation of leaf or other nature forms to a given area; vase and bowl cutting and coloring with adaptation to a definite use; study of color harmony with special reference to interior decoration and to dress; lettering applied to book covers, posters, initials, and monograms; decorative landscape composition; and the making of stencils.

DEPARTMENT OF HOME ECONOMICS

MISS WALKER, MISS NEWMAN

The aim of the Home Economics Course is, first, education—that education which is a development of power over self and over environment, enabling the student to live the best life possible for herself and to be of the most service to others. It is believed that this study will give an abiding interest in the most fundamental of all the industries of human life, home-making and the getting and preparing of food and clothing; that it will enable the student to see in one thing done rightly the likeness of all things done rightly; that habits of accuracy, neatness, correct judgment, and inventiveness will be established.

In the second place, the aim is to impart knowledge that will be of practical value. Our welfare as individuals and as a nation depends upon our home life; the making of this home life is entirely in the hands of woman. Every woman has something to do with the business of housekeeping in some way, at some time; even if she should not, "the mission of the ideal woman is to make the whole world homelike." Therefore every woman should have an understanding of the principles underlying this industry. She should know how to make a home healthful and attractive, how to keep it so, and how to supply such food as will maintain the body in as nearly a state of perfect health as possible.

A third aim is to prepare students for the teaching of this subject in the schools of the State. As a result of this teaching we may look forward to a better quality of education and to the day when every child in the land will have wholesome, properly-cooked food, and "will be guided by intelligent hands over the threshold of that earthly paradise—a clean, restful, beautiful home."

The High School and Professional Courses offered by this department are as follows:

HIGH SCHOOL COURSES IN HOME ECONOMICS

HOME ECONOMICS (130 a, b) Third Year. Two double periods and one single period a week throughout the year. The work of this year comprises courses in Foods and Cookery, and in Garment Making. The purpose of the work in Cookery is to give opportunity for practice in home cookery. The course includes a study of cereals, vegetables, fruits, soups, milk, eggs, meat, poultry, and candy; also the making of salads, desserts, and beverages.

The work in Garment Making includes a study of simple drafting, taking of measures, use and adaptation of commercial patterns, use and purpose of clothing, selection of suitable materials and designs, use of sewing machine and its attachments. The laboratory work consists of the making of a suit of undergarments by hand and machine.

Laboratory Fee for Cookery: Two dollars per term.

Students supply their own materials for Sewing.

HOME ECONOMICS (131 a, b) Fourth Year. Two double periods and one single period a week throughout the year. The work of this year comprises courses in Advanced Cookery and in Advanced Sewing.

The purpose of the course in Cookery is to place food preparation on a scientific basis and to systematize methods of work. It includes the study of the making of batters and doughs, the care and preservation of foods, the selection and preparation of foods, the comparative costs of food materials, the planning and cooking and serving of meals.

The course in Advanced Sewing considers the identification and grading of materials, their economical purchase, and the drafting of patterns. It includes the making of a tailored skirt and shirtwaist, simple cotton dress and lingerie waist, and lingerie dress, applying lace and hand embroidery.

Laboratory Fee for Cookery: Two dollars per term.

Students furnish their own materials for Sewing.

PROFESSIONAL COURSES IN HOME ECONOMICS

HOME ECONOMICS (132 b) First Year Group B of Courses II and III. One single and two double periods a week for term B. This course is planned for students who expect to teach in town and country schools. It deals with the subjects of Food and Clothing, the aim being to give the student some technical knowledge of and experience in the handling of the materials connected with these subjects as well as methods of adapting this knowledge to the needs of the locality, school, and home.

It aims to give the students an appreciative basis for helping the pupils of their schools and the people of the community to get the greatest good from their environment, and so enrich their lives. Clubs for young people, school lunches, and meetings for farm women, are among the topics of the course.

Laboratory Fee for Cookery: One dollar per term.

Students supply their own materials for Sewing.

HOME ECONOMICS (420 a) Elective in Course IV and required in First Year of Course V. One double and three single periods a week for term A. Textiles. The work of this course consists of the study of textile fibres, considered from the raw state to the finished product. Textiles includes the determination of the different fabrics, their weave, finish, dye, cost, and use. Simple tests, such as could be used in the home, are made to detect adulterations.

HOME ECONOMICS (421 b) Elective in Course IV and required in First Year of Course V. Two double and two single periods a week for term B, Costume Design. This course deals with the application of the principles of design to the entire costume. It includes the study of line, form, and color in their relation to the individual; and the study of the suitability of design to materials and articles of clothing.

HOME ECONOMICS (422 b) Elective in Course IV and required in First Year of Course V. Three double periods and one single period a week for term B. Principles of Sewing. This course includes the study of stitches, seams, materials, and trimmings, suitable for underwear and simple dresses. Both hand-work and machine work are used in making the garments.

TEXT BOOK: Baldt's Clothing for Women.

Students furnish their own material for sewing.

HOME ECONOMICS (423 a) Elective in Course IV and required in Second Year of Course V. Three double and one single periods a week for term A. Dressmaking. This course includes the making of a tailored wool dress and an afternoon silk dress suitable for women. Typical garments for children of different ages are also made. Discussions are carried on in reference to suitable materials, trimmings, colors, lines for each garment made. Both drafted and commercial patterns are used.

TEXT BOOK: Fales's Dressmaking.

Students supply their own materials.

HOME ECONOMICS (424 a, b) Elective in Course IV and required in Second Year of Course V. Three double periods and one single period a week for both terms. Principles of Cooking. The work of this course consists of an elementary study of foods, the process of cooking, and the principles underlying the process. It also includes the training in the application of the principles of cooking in the planning, preparing, and serving of meals for the family group; and the giving of various entertainments for formal and informal occasions.

Laboratory Fee: Two dollars per term.

HOME ECONOMICS (425 a) Elective in Third or Fourth Years of Course IV. Two double periods and two single periods a week for term A. House Planning and Furnishing. This course treats of the subject of the house, its construction, furnishings, decoration, and care. The study of house materials, color harmony in furnishings, the selection and arrangement of furniture, draperies, pictures, etc., form part of the course.

HOME ECONOMICS (426 b) Elective in Course IV. Three double periods and one single period a week for term B. Advanced Dressmaking. In this course each student designs her garments and then makes her own patterns to suit the design. Dresses and waists of soft materials are designed and constructed.

Students furnish their own materials for Sewing.

HOME ECONOMICS (427 a) Elective in Third or Fourth Year of Course IV. Three double periods and one single period a week for term A. Elementary Dietetics. This course aims to give a knowledge of the fundamental principles of nutrition. The composition and digestibility of foods are studied, their value to the body, and the amounts and kinds required for individuals of different ages and under different conditions. The planning and working out of diets for normal individuals and children is included in the laboratory work.

Laboratory Fee: Two dollars per term.

HOME ECONOMICS (428 b) Elective in Course IV. Three double periods and one single period a week for term B. Nutrition and Dietetics. This course is a continuation of Elementary Dietetics. It aims to give the student a working knowledge of dietetics by studying the dietary problems of the family and institution. Practical ways by which scientific principles may be applied in the planning of dietaries are studied, and attention is given to the special problems of infant and invalid feeding and cases of abnormal metabolism.

Laboratory Fee: Two dollars per term.

HOME ECONOMICS (429 a) Elective in Third or Fourth Year of Course IV. Four periods a week for term A. House Management. This course consists of the study of the position of woman as an economic factor in the social world. The question of buying, cost of living, service, standards of living, budgets, systematic care of wastes, home ideals, division of labor, efficiency and economy are discussed.

HOME ECONOMICS (430 a, b) Elective in Course IV, and required in Second Year of Course V. Two single periods a week for terms A and B. Methods of Teaching Home Economics. Methods of presentation of the subject, courses of study, and text books, are studied and applied.

HOME ECONOMICS (431 a, b) Elective in Course IV and required in Second Year of Course V. Six periods a week for term A or B. Teaching and Observation. Students are required to do teaching work and make observations in the grades of the training school and high school department, where, under the joint direction of their instructors and the supervisor, they have actual practice in the kind of work that will be expected of them as teachers of Home Economics. Observations and reports are made of work done.

HOME ECONOMICS (432 b) Elective in Third or Fourth Year of Courses IV. Two single periods a week for term B. Home Care of the Sick. This course deals with the study of the care of the sick in the home when the services of a professional nurse are not required. What to do in emergencies and accidents, the equipment and care of the room, the care of the patient, the treatment of children's diseases, and the use of disinfectants, are among the topics discussed.

HOME ECONOMICS (433 a) Elective in Third or Fourth Year of Course IV. Two double periods and two single periods a week for term B. Demonstration Cooking. The work of this course aims to give the student an appreciative basis for helping the pupils of their schools and the people of the community. School lunches, clubs for young people, and meetings for women are among the topics of the course. Demonstrations of various cookery processes by the students are required. This course should be elected by all students desiring to become Food Demonstrators.

Laboratory Fee: Two dollars per term.

HOME ECONOMICS (434 b) Required in Second Year of Course I. Two periods a week for term B. The Child. This course aims to give a knowledge of the physical and mental growth and needs of children from infancy to the school age. It is planned to give the student information as to the most effective methods in child training for character development. The best equipment for play and materials for home occupations are carefully considered.

DEPARTMENT OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION

MRS. WARWICK

All hopeful educational effort presupposes a substantial physical basis. Women who teach should, first of all, be in good physical condition, and to further this end each student is given a thorough physical and medical examination at the beginning of each school year. They should also have a knowledge of the practical, as well as the theoretical, side of Physical Education, and in order to accomplish this, physical training is required of all students except those taking courses in which a great deal of out-door exercise is included.

Athletics are an important part of the work during the school year; special hours being arranged for basket-ball and baseball practice.

The regulation gymnasium suit is required for all practice work. It consists of an all-white middy-blouse, black tie, full dark-blue serge bloomers, and gymnasium shoes. These may be purchased in Farmville.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION (140 a, b)—Practical Work—First, Second, Third, and Fourth Years of the High School Course. Two periods a week throughout the year. One period a week is given to the simpler forms of marching tactics, including facings, alignments, etc., also a small amount of Swedish free gymnastics with and without hand apparatus. The greatest emphasis is placed upon competitive games, thereby developing a sound moral character and a spirit of fair play. The second period each week is given to the study and practice of the simpler folk dances.

All work is done out of doors as long as the weather permits. In the fall of the year, much time is given to basket-ball practice, inter-class match games being encouraged. The latter part of the spring term is devoted to field and track athletics in preparation for Field Day.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION (141 a, b)—Practical Work—First Year of all professional courses. Two periods a week throughout the year. In the B term those students who have games and folk dances are excused from Physical Education. During the fall term, one period is given to Folk and National dances, consisting of the analysis of the fundamental dance steps, and a variation of these steps in simple ring dances. The second period is devoted to regular gymnastic work. A small amount of drill work is also introduced, the emphasis being placed on practical work without apparatus, which may be applied in schools having no gymnasium equipment.

Game work is given special attention, the purpose being to provide explanation and practice in a considerable number and variety of games suitable for school room and for playground, for children of all ages.

During the latter part of the spring term both periods each week are devoted to Field and Track Athletics in preparation for Field Day.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION (142)—Practical Work—Second Year Professional.

Student Teachers. This course is a continuation of the work done in the First Year, more emphasis being placed upon the method of teaching. Most of the time is devoted to work in practice games for school room and playground. Some time is also given to Folk and Aesthetic dancing, including as much and as difficult work in the latter as the ability of the class will permit.

Academic Students. One period a week is devoted to Folk and Aesthetic dancing; the other is given to advanced march tactics, drill, and game work, with as much time as possible spent on the Athletic Field.

METHODS IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION (143 b)—Theory—First Year Group A of Course III. Two periods a week for term B. In this course a study is made of the principal types of motor activity as to purposes and methods; of the relation of physical education to education in general; and of the application of psychological, physiological, and hygienic tests to all motor activity. Outlines of Festival and Pageant work are also included.

Instruction is given in how to plan and conduct lessons, the latter part of the course being devoted to practice teaching by the class.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION GAMES AND FOLK DANCES (181 b)
First Year of Courses I and II. Two periods a week for term B. This course is given jointly by the Kindergarten and Physical Education Departments.

Folk dances begin with the simplest forms, including imitation of child play and industrial activities, dramatic dances, ring dances, and dances of simple technique to be used in elementary grades and High School, emphasis being placed on the method of presentation.

Kindergarten games include the organization of simple activities, interests, and experiences of the child into game form, together with sense games, trade games, traditional games, and games appropriate to different seasons of the year.

HANDWRITING

MISS WILKINSON

People in general, and the business world in particular, have been dissatisfied with the quality of the handwriting of the pupils who have gone out from our public schools. This inefficiency is due, in the main, to two causes—first, the frequent changes in the style of handwriting taught, and second, the lack of specific preparation, on the part of the teacher, for teaching any system adequately. It is difficult for anyone to teach what he himself does not know. It is also true that the knowledge of a subject does not guarantee the ability to teach it. The work in handwriting, therefore, aims—first, to make good writers, and second, to prepare students for efficient teaching of handwriting. While pupils are largely imitative and learn much from copying the formulas given by the teacher and the "copy book," yet the present condition of affairs justifies us in the belief that, as a method, it is a failure. Direct, specific, tested methods of teaching, coupled with the ability to write well, can alone produce the desired results. The following courses, then, follow the twofold aim of making good writers and preparing good teachers of writing. The muscular movement method, adopted by the State Board of Education for use in the schools of the State, is taught in these courses.

HANDWRITING (150 a, b) First and Second Years—High School. Two periods per week throughout the year. All pupils enrolled in the first and second years of the high school course, who have not a well-developed, acceptable style of handwriting, are required to take this course. The quality of a pupil's handwriting is determined by the Locker Scale, combined with the personal opinion of the instructor. Those pupils who have reached a certain degree of proficiency in writing are permitted to elect in the place of this course Drawing in the first year and Industrial Arts in the second year. This course consists of direct instruction in handling materials, posture, muscular movement, and such drill in the mechanics of writing as may be necessary to the formation of a legible, rapid, easy style of writing.

HANDWRITING (151 a) First Year Professional of all courses. Two periods a week for term A, one period a week for term B. This course aims, first, to teach students to write, and second, to teach them how to teach handwriting. Under the first is given definite instruction and drills on handling material, posture, movement, the mechanics of writing, etc., until the student writes well with both pen and crayon. Under the second come such problems as the psychology of handwriting, adapting methods to the physical and mental development of the child, the place of formal drills, motivation of writing, standards of excellence in handwriting, the technique of class instruction, the physiology and hygiene of writing, measuring the results with the scales of Locker and Ayres, and the correlation of handwriting instruction with other written work in the curriculum.

LIBRARY METHODS

MISS MCGOVERN

At the beginning of each year five periods of time scheduled for English is devoted to a study of Library Methods. The aim of this work is to aid the students in the intelligent use of the school library. The work is divided by years, as follows:

The work of the First Year High School covers rules and regulations concerning the use of the school library, circulation of books, and the general arrangement of books in the library. Dictionaries are studied with regard to their use, and the information to be found in an unabridged dictionary.

In the Second Year High School the card catalogue and how to use it is taken up, and encyclopedias and atlases are studied as dictionaries were the previous year.

The work of the Third Year High School includes biographical reference work, magazine and periodical indexes, special reference work, and a review of dictionaries and encyclopedias.

In the Fourth Year High School and the First Year Professional, Library Methods is required only of those students who have had no previous training of this kind. In each of these classes the allotted time is given to a study of the rules and regulations concerning the use of the library and the arrangement of books, use of the catalogue, and contents of the reference department.

LIBRARY METHODS AND CHILD LITERATURE (155) Second Year of Course III. Two periods a week for one term. The aims of this course are: (1) to acquaint students with the State laws concerning State and district aid in securing public school libraries; (2) to train them in the proper administration of such a library while teaching; and (3) to make them familiar with some of the best literature for children, and to suggest methods of creating a love for such literature.

¹DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

MR. TIDYMAN, MR. COYNER, MR. SOMERS, MISS PIERCE, MISS STUBBS, MISS MIX, MISS JONES

NOTE—Each head of department whose subject is taught in the Training School provides a course in the teaching of that subject. These courses may be found as parts of the statements of the work of these respective departments.

Ultimately, teaching is an art which involves the free and more or less unconscious use of materials, facts, principles, and methods. But, like other arts, it is approached by a deliberate attempt to understand its fundamental facts and laws, and to master its technique. The Department of Education hopes to render its students service in this attempt.

Principles of teaching are found in the constitution and development of the child mind, laws of learning, etc. (Psychology) ; in the growth of present-day aims, means and methods (History of Education) ; and in the combined contributions of sciences: Psychology, Experimental Psychology, History, Comparative System, Sociology, Experimental Pedagogy, and Hygiene (Principles of Education).

These principles are systematically applied to the practical problems of teaching in courses in special methods, general methods, class management, and school organization and administration. Finally, by actually taking charge of a class the student has an opportunity to test and apply her knowledge, to become familiar with the school room atmosphere, and to gain some control of the tools of her profession (Practice Teaching and Observation.)

It is our purpose to equip teachers for the broad social demands which will be made upon them as well as for effective class room service. Therefore, instruction in community organization and leadership is given.

¹The supervisors of the Training School are members of the Department of Education and teach the courses listed for them in this department.

In order that the work of the department may meet more effectively the needs of students entering the various branches of public school work, specialized courses are given in four fields; namely, elementary, secondary, kindergarten, and rural. In the elementary field, further differentiation is made between the primary and the grammar grades.

The courses offered in the department are as follows:

ELEMENTARY EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY (160 a) First Year of all courses. Three periods a week for term A. The aim of this course is to equip the student with the elementary principles of teaching. Teaching is regarded as a means of facilitating learning. An attempt is then made to acquaint the student with mental life as a whole, its nature and content, relations to the physical body and nervous system, principles of development, laws of operation and control, and its bearing on the modes of learning and of teaching. These elementary facts are studied with special reference to their significance for teaching, and students illustrate them from their own past and present learning experience. An opportunity is given each student to do some work in simple experimentation in the problems of learning.

This work is prerequisite to all other classes in Education.

AN ORIENTING COURSE. One period a week for the first twelve weeks of term A, all members of the class meeting together. An intimate study is made of the capabilities of the prospective teachers represented by the students in this class, together with a study of the various types of public schools that the various courses prepare teachers for. These studies, reinforced by a study of the characteristics of pupils of the different school ages and qualities of teaching demanded by them, are supposed to afford a guide for the intelligent selection of courses at the end of the term.

ELEMENTARY EDUCATION

EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY (161 b) First Year of Courses I and II and Second Year of Course V. Child Study. Three periods a week for term B. The purpose of this work is to further the student's knowledge of the child as a developing being and to acquaint her with the more important facts and phenomena of child nature, with especial emphasis on the primary school period, their tendencies and the laws of development and control. Among the topics stressed are: instincts, their manifestation, order of appearance, essential characteristics, function and use and place in the educative scheme; habits, formation, varieties, function and use; education of the senses; association, memory, reasoning; individual differences and mental tests; in brief, the learning process.

TEXT Book: Norsworthy and Whitley's Psychology of Childhood.

PRIMARY METHODS (162) First and Second Years of Courses I and II. Five periods a week for one term. Given in term B of the First Year and repeated in the academic term of the Second Year. The course gives a general acquaintance with the work of the first four grades as regards aims, nature and scope of subject matter, and methods of teaching, with questions relating to correlation and motivation. The subjects treated are: reading and phonics, writing, spelling, arithmetic, geography, and nature study.

TEXT BOOKS: Kendall and Mirick's How to Teach the Fundamental Subjects, the State Normal School Bulletins on English, Spelling, and The Training School Course of Study.

GRAMMAR GRADE METHODS (163) Second Year. Group A of Course III. Three periods a week for one term. This course aims to stress the fundamental conceptions, aims, and methods of the branches of study usually undertaken by the grammar grades. Each subject is discussed separately, practical methods and devices receiving the major emphasis. Those subjects receive most attention that have least attention devoted to them in the special method courses. First come the instrumental subjects; second, the informational subjects; third, the more or less formal subjects, and finally, the special subjects. All discussion is related specifically to the work in grades five, six, and seven.

TEXT BOOKS: Kendall and Mirick's Teaching the Fundamental Subjects; State Normal School Bulletins on Spelling and on Elementary English, and books on special methods used in other courses.

METHODS AND MANAGEMENT (164) Second Year of Courses II and III. Three periods a week for one term. This course is taken parallel with practice teaching; and it is a continuation and an enlargement of the First Year work in Educational Psychology, Special Methods, and Observation. Its aim is to enable student-teachers to study the problems of teaching from the standpoint of actual practice. Methods and management are treated as two inseparable phases of teaching.

In developing methods of instruction, especial emphasis is put upon lesson types in order to develop method concepts that secure variety in procedure as well as adaptability to the nature of the topic taught.

A few of the usable standard tests and scales are taken up in class, where a study is made of their purpose and use. Each teacher is made familiar with the technique of measurement through the use of the scales in measuring the product of the grade she is teaching.

This course lays stress on the point of view that good teaching is that which enables the learner to reconstruct his experience, but at the same time it gives due attention to the drill phase of learning. Part of the term's work deals with the problem of vitalizing the course of study.

Separate sections are maintained for student-teachers of Courses II A, III A, II B, and III B, respectively. In each section emphasis is placed upon the problems most vital to that group.

TEXT BOOKS: Earhart's Types of Teaching, Bagley's Classroom Management.

HISTORY OF ELEMENTARY EDUCATION (165) Second Year of Courses I, II, and Second Year Group A of Course III. Three periods a week for one term. This course aims to give an understanding of modern public school work carried on in the grammar grades, the primary grades, the kindergarten, and the country school. The work of these divisions of the public school system is studied in the light of both their present tendencies and their historical development.

The work begins with a brief survey of present tendencies, after which these tendencies are studied as they originated in and developed from the conflict of Greek, Roman, and Christian influences during the Middle Ages; the Renaissance; the Reformation; and modern educational movements. The contributions of Sturm, Comenius, Rousseau, Pestalozzi, Herbart, Fröbel, Horace Mann, Henry Barnard, Harris, and Dewey are considered in their settings.

All the work has reference to the development of public education in Virginia, and the services of such men as Ruffner have due consideration.

PRINCIPLES OF ELEMENTARY EDUCATION (166) Second Year of Courses I, II and III. Four periods a week for one term. This course is open to students who have completed the course in Elementary Educational Psychology. Its aim is to enable the students to understand and appreciate the fundamental principles upon which educational practice rests, and to prepare them to meet the problems of education with intelligent open-mindedness. Constant reference is made to the close relation that must exist between education and social life, and to the fact that any theory in education concerning aim, method, or content is to be accepted only so far as it is based upon social conditions and needs.

The main topics of the course are: aims in education; individual differences and mental inheritance; the laws of learning; formal discipline and the transfer of training; liberal and vocational education; the course of study and other means of education; and the results of education.

TEXT BOOKS: Thorndike's Education, Dewey's Moral Principles in Education.

The main references are: Cyclopedia of Education; Horne's Philosophy of Education; Henderson's Principles of Education.

CURRENT PROBLEMS (167) Second Year of Courses I, II and III. One period a week for one term. This course affords an opportunity for acquaintance with current literature dealing with educational problems selected for their special interest to its students and, as far as possible, chosen by them.

Separate sections are maintained for students of Courses I, II and III, Group A, and II and III, Group B. In each section the emphasis is placed upon the problems most vital to that group.

TEACHING AND OBSERVATION (168) Second Year of Courses I, II, III, IV and V. In Courses II, Group B, and III, Group B, the students are required, in addition to the teaching and observation in the Training School, to visit the rural schools of the neighboring counties for acquaintance with rural school conditions and adaptations of practice, also when practicable to do actual training in these schools.

The ability to teach is the ultimate test of students in the professional department. Skill in teaching is regarded as one of the essential requisites of the Normal School graduate, and unless sufficient ability is attained to teach and discipline a room properly, the student cannot be graduated. The teaching is done in the Training School, under the special supervision and direction of the supervisors for the grades and the heads of departments. The effort is continually made to inspire the young teacher with the true professional spirit, and to equip her with such methods and help as to make her efficient in her work. It is evident that this actual experience in the schoolroom gives the student-teacher a power which could not be gained by any amount of theoretical information, per se. Hence practice teaching is required in all courses.

SECONDARY EDUCATION

EDUCATIONAL PSYCHOLOGY (440 b) Required in First Year of Course IV. Three periods a week for term B. The Psychology of Adolescence and the High School Subjects. While the first term's work in psychology is general in its nature, this course is restricted largely to the educational aspects of the psychology of adolescence and the high school subjects. Such topics are discussed as the physiological significance of the adolescent period, the psychological phenomena of adolescence, the social, the moral, and the religious aspects of adolescence. The changes in the youth's disposition; the new, rational basis for his conduct; the various motives that hold sway, and the peculiar stress that accompanies the physiological and psychological changes he is undergoing, are studied with the distinct end in view that the teacher may use a more rational form of control and appeal, both in discipline and instruction. In addition to this intimate study of the high school pupil, a careful examination will be made of the psychology underlying the content, the aims, and the methods of the high school curriculum.

METHODS AND MANAGEMENT (441) Required in Second Year of Course IV. Four periods a week for the academic term. High School Methods and Management. This course is furnished in order to provide a conscious, evaluated, skilled method of teaching. The fundamentals of general method, such as interest, motive, attention, assignments—individual, group, and class,—the art of questioning, etc., are first considered; then the attention is directed to the development of the various types of teaching. Finally the methods used in the individual subjects are treated briefly. At all times students are required to draw upon their directed teaching for illustrations, and the supervisor requires the student-teacher to put into practical operation in the classroom the ideas gained in the Methods and Management Course. The significant phases of classroom management are treated from the standpoint of their values both as means and as ends.

TEXT BOOK: Parker's Methods of Teaching in High Schools.

HISTORY OF EDUCATION (442 a) Required in Third Year of Course IV. Four periods per week for term A. The secondary schools of Greece, Rome, Central Europe during the Middle Ages and the Modern Period, and the early American Secondary Schools are studied in order to trace the development and to properly interpret the bearing and scope of the curriculum, organization, and methods of teaching prevailing in the present-day schools. Especial attention is devoted during the latter part of the course to the European Realistic Schools, and the American Latin Grammar School and Academy.

Especial attention is given to the principles and traditions of education, in their historical development, that have dominated and controlled secondary education for so long. With these are contrasted the new ideals of the modern high school.

PRINCIPLES OF SECONDARY EDUCATION (443 b) Required in Third Year of Course IV. Four periods a week for term B. This course is prefaced by a brief historical survey of the field of Secondary Education, which is followed by a comparison of the American High School with the chief types of secondary schools of France, Germany and England. The psychological, social, and physiological principles involved in the teaching of the various secondary subjects, and the various conceptions and traditional doctrines that have long held sway over secondary education, are examined in the light of recent scientific investigation. The controlling aims and purposes of school discipline, athletics and recreation, the social, moral and religious life of the high school student are examined to determine their educational bearing. The course closes with a careful consideration of the social aspects of high school education and the tendencies that are dominating the reorganization of the secondary school.

TEXT: Monroe's The Principles of Secondary Education.

SCHOOL ADMINISTRATION (444) Required in Fourth Year of Course IV. Four periods a week for one term. It is anticipated that many of the graduates of this course will be called upon to serve as principals of small high schools, and this course is given to acquaint the students with some of the fundamentals of high school supervision. Such problems are treated as organization of the teaching force; supervision and criticism of instruction; school discipline; the principal in relation to the school board, the teachers, the community and the pupils; the training of teachers in service; adapting the school to community needs; making the school a social center; classification and promotion of pupils; and measuring the results of education.

KINDERGARTEN EDUCATION

The aim of this department of Education is to give the student a thorough kindergarten training. This involves an insight into the fundamental educational principles which underlie the whole process of education. The work is so unified with other work in education as to enable the student to see the development of the child as a continuous process of which the kindergarten represents the beginning phases.

The connection between the kindergarten and the first grade is especially emphasized, and the observation and practice teaching in both departments are required in order that the student may comprehend how the work done in one department may be carried over, utilized, and extended in the next.

In addition to the special courses listed below, the kindergarten work includes general courses in the Department of Education, and also several related courses in other departments.

The courses offered in Kindergarten Education are as follows:

CONSTRUCTIVE ACTIVITIES IN THE KINDERGARTEN (180 b)
First Year of Course I. Four single periods and one double period a week for term B. The purpose of this course is to give a study of the constructive materials of the kindergarten and an insight into their use in children's play and work as a medium for expression and as a means for developing thought.

Observation in kindergarten and primary grades is required in connection with this course.

CHILD LITERATURE (18) First Year, term B, or Second Year, term A of Courses I and II.

For detailed statement, see Department of English, page 59.

GAMES AND FOLK DANCES (181 b) First Year of Courses I and II. Two periods a week for term B. This course is given jointly by the Kindergarten Department and the Department of Physical Education. The kindergarten games include organization of simple activities, interests, and experiences of the child into game forms. Sense games, trade games, traditional games, and games appropriate to different seasons of the year are developed. Such subjects are discussed as the meaning of play, possible aims and problems connected with plays and games, the relationship between activity and mental development, and the value and need of sense training.

Folk dances include imitations of the child's play as well as industrial activities set to music and performed in definite form with song, dramatic dances, and dances of simple technique in step and gesture. These dances are planned especially to allow the child free physical activity expressed through rhythmic movements in definite form.

KINDERGARTEN PRINCIPLES AND METHODS (183 a) Second Year of Course I. Four periods a week for term A. This course makes a study of the educational principles and methods upon which the kindergarten program is based. Fröbelian principles are studied in Education of Man and the Mother Plays. Part of the course is devoted to an historical survey of the kindergarten movement, aiming to acquaint the student with the different forces that have operated in forming the kindergarten situation of to-day. The administrative side of the teacher's work is considered, such as care of room, ordering of materials, and the keeping of records.

PROGRAM (184 a) Second Year of Course I. Two periods a week for term A. In this course a critical and comparative study is made of typical kindergarten programs, resulting in the construction of a program which will make practical application of the principles and methods presented in Conference (185 a, b). An analytic study is made of the kindergarten material, songs, games, stories, gifts, and occupations, considering the place and function of each in the kindergarten program.

CONFERENCE (185 a, b) Second Year of Course I. One period a week throughout the year. In this conference the program, as it is to be carried out in kindergarten, is discussed. The results of preceding lessons, as these were developed in work with the children, are reviewed, and deductions made which will be serviceable for future guidance.

THE CHILD (434 b) Second Year, term B of Course I.

For detailed statement see Department of Home Economics, page 119.

RURAL EDUCATION

This work is undertaken in response to the increasing demand for teachers and supervisors who are definitely trained to do the same high-class work in country schools as has been done for some time in city schools. The aim of the course is to give special preparation for teaching and supervising graded country schools.

The improvement of country life and education is one of the largest problems of our century. It is important that its solution should be undertaken by those whose interests and native capacities are best suited to its characteristic needs and opportunities. To this end, the student does not definitely elect the work in Rural Education until the middle of her First Year. The work of the first term is uniform with that of the other professional courses. Through her contact with professional work, the student is enabled to make an intelligent choice of courses, and through their knowledge of her, instructors are enabled to advise the student of her special qualifications and abilities. The work of the first term, therefore, aims to give that knowledge of child nature and professional acquaintance with the subject matter of the elementary school which is an essential part of the equipment of the teacher of any school or grade. For a description of these courses, see the A term of the First Year of the various departments. For the remaining terms of the professional years the aim is not only to acquaint the student with methods and principles of teaching, but also to give her some knowledge of country life conditions and the interrelation between them and the work of the country school, and to aid her to adapt general principles and methods to the needs and resources of various types of rural schools, from the one-room school to the consolidated high school.

COUNTRY SCHOOL MANAGEMENT (200 b) First Year Group B of Courses II and III. Two periods a week for term B. This is an introductory course in the teaching of country schools and is intended for students taking one year only of professional work.

The course aims to present the practical problems found in country schools of various types, and to show how they may be handled to economize time and effort, and to conduce to the development and progress of the pupils. The possibility of developing self-reliance and initiative, and of providing for individual differences to an extent impossible in a city school, is pointed out. Schedules of daily recitation and seat work for one, two, and three-teacher schools are planned. Especial attention is given to study and seat-work periods, and to sanitary conditions of school and grounds as related to the physical, mental, and moral life of the pupils. The use of the recess periods, with consideration of practicable and desirable games and game equipment; provision for indoor play in inclement weather; and the relation of the school to the recreation as well as to the industrial life of the community, are considered as legitimate phases of the question of country school management.

MAIN REFERENCES: Bagley's Classroom Management, Carney's Country Life and the Country School, The State Course of Study, The Sanitary School.

RURAL SCHOOL PROBLEMS (201) Second Year of Courses II B and III B. Three periods a week for term B. This course follows the students' practice teaching in the Training School and their observation in the rural schools. It is a co-ordination course linking up the students' theory and practice teaching with actual rural problems. A great deal of attention is given to the selection of subject matter that is of vital interest to the country boy and girl, and of methods that are especially adapted to country school conditions. Special study is made of the arrangement of subject matter into organized units centering about fundamental phases of country life experience and needs. Illustrations of such units worked out in detail are: the expense account of a poultry club member, the beauty of commonplace things, the importance of ordinary happenings, everyday citizenship as illustrated in the daily practice of thrift, economy, co-operation for community health, etc. The importance and methods of adapting the State course of study to the children's needs are emphasized. Study is also made of organization and administration problems in country schools.

TEXT BOOK: Woofter's Teaching in Rural Schools. References and parallel readings bearing upon rural school work and country life.

RURAL SOCIOLOGY (202) Second Year Group B of Courses II and III, and Second Year of Course V. Three periods a week for the academic term. Only the most important phases of the subjects are touched upon in this course. It attempts to show what are the principal economic and social conditions in rural life to-day, to give some account of their development, and to acquaint the student with the leading agencies and institutions for agricultural and rural social betterment. Among such agencies, the rural school and the demonstration work of the Department of Agriculture receive especial consideration.

TEXT BOOKS: Wilson's Evolution of the Country Community, Gillette's Constructive Rural Sociology.

RURAL OBSERVATION AND CONFERENCE (203) Second Year of Group B of Courses II and III. The equivalent of two periods a week for one term. In addition to the teaching and observation in the Training School (see Education Department, Teaching and Observation 168), students of rural education are required to observe, in company with the rural supervisor, teaching conditions and teaching in some of the neighboring rural schools. To this purpose each student devotes one forenoon a week for as many weeks as the supervisor deems necessary. Written reports of this observation are discussed in a weekly conference with the supervisor and are made the basis of constructive plans for improvement in teaching.

METHODS AND MANAGEMENT (164). See Department of Education. A separate section is offered in this course for the rural group.

TEACHING AND OBSERVATION (168). See Department of Education for the special provisions made in this course for observation and teaching in the rural schools.

CURRENT PROBLEMS (167). See Department of Education. A separate section is maintained for the rural group.

AGRICULTURE (93 b). See Department of Biology.

HOME ECONOMICS (132 b). See Department of Home Economics. A special course for rural teachers.

MUSIC (67). See Department of Music. A special course for rural teachers.

DRAWING (126½ b). See Department of Drawing. A special course in elementary expression work and in applied art for rural teachers.

²ORGANIZATION

The Training School, which consists of a kindergarten and nine grades, is in charge of a Director who is also Principal of the Training School, Heads of Departments, Supervisors, and Assistant Supervisors. As student-teachers, certain responsibilities are delegated to members of the Senior Class. The Director is also Head of the Department of Education, hence the work of the Training School is in close touch with the best educational thought. The purpose of this school is to give to the student-teacher actual experience in solving the various problems which confront the teacher. She is placed in charge of part or all of a room, and as soon as practicable is held responsible for the discipline as well as the teaching. All practice teaching is carefully supervised.

The Director of the Training School divides the Second Year Professional Class into two sections. In each term the members of one section are engaged in class work, while the members of the other devote most of their time to teaching.

¹ Heads of Departments whose subjects are represented in the Training School, are also members of the Training School Faculty.

² Detailed phases of organization are covered in the "Report of the Committee on Relationships in the Training School."

This division is made in order that the students who are teaching in the Training School may be practically free for this work.

No student is allowed to graduate, however proficient she may be in the academic branches, until she has satisfied the Training School Faculty that she is qualified to teach.

JUVENILE LIBRARY

For use of the Training School there is a small library, consisting of 648 juvenile books, half a dozen magazines, and a daily newspaper. Once a week, under the guidance of a student-teacher and the supervision of the Librarian, each grade comes separately to the Training School Library to exchange books and to read. From this Juvenile Library each grade has the privilege of drawing a supply of books for reading with the children, thereby forming a small classroom or grade library.

THE COURSE OF STUDY

Special attention is given to the Training School Course of Study. The aim is to make it more than a mere listing of the subject matter adapted to each particular grade. In addition to this arrangement of subject matter, the course of study attempts to show the relation of formal subject matter to the life interests of the learners.

The course of study is printed as a separate bulletin.
